THE GEORGIA PATRIOTS,

WHO STAND BETWEEN SENATE AND PRESIDENT.

Robeson's Indifference to Insult—A Spell of Cool Weather—The Naval Debate—The Fast Mail South—The Fate of the Internal Revenue Bill—Democratic Speculations.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—To-day has brought no new developments in the contest over the Georgia judgeship now transferred from the white house to the senate. On the former arena Mr. Atkins won. In the latter he will probably fail. This impression is stronger now than when I telegraphed you last night that Atkins would not be confirmed. Personally he is a very pleasant gentleman and is said to be an excellent politician, but the senate has about reached the conclusion that a field of usefulness more fitted for his talents than a district judgeship can probably be found for him. Colonel Farrow works for him with untiring energy, and I suppose Mr. Speer will give him his influence, but as that is microscopic in the house, it will hardly stretch to the other end of the capitol. I am glad to know there are some republicans who mean to look at this question in a non-partisan view. They see that Mr. Atkins's qualifications are not such as to fit him for the office he is named to fill, and his record not clear enough to be rewarded with the ermine. The committee will not meet until Monday, and I look for an adverse report on the nomition. But if the report is favorable, it will not be adopted by the senate I hear that Mr. Atkins's friends will when they find he cannot go through, try to stave off action on his case until next session. This policy will not help him. He will be very little improved in the law by next winter, and his record as a defaulter in the collectorship at Savannah will stand in its present light unchanged. These two things will beat him now or next December for the position he aspires to fill. Mr. Darnell will get the district attorney's place and Mr. Locke the marshalship of the southern district. Both of them, if nominated, will be confirmed.

THE PRESIDENT'S OBJECT.

The great object of the president is to secure, by judicious use of his patronage, a following in the southern states strong enough to capture the defegation to the next national convention. After Virginia he has manipulated more in Georgia than anywhere else. What has he done? His own chosen syndicate is divided by jealousy and distrust. He has offended some of the best men and ablest managers in his own party, and if the Georgia republican convention to choose delegates for a presidentiol convention were to meet to-morrow Blaine could beat Arthur two to one in it. In Virginia his success is only apparent. There he has preferred the Mahone gang to the real leaders of the republican party like Wickham and Jorgensen and they are playing for even in '84.

Mr. Arthur has only one big reputation. That is of being an astute political manager. He may be in New York, where he obtained this distinction, but the southern problem does not seem to fall in his line. The Blaine men are charmed with the so-called southern policy of the administration. It is working beautifully into their hands.

THE PROSPECT.

The past few delicious days have nerved the statesmen for work. No prospect of getting away on the 17th now. A week later may find congress at work. The senate seems determined to try its hand on the internal revenue bill and that will give ample material for such delay. The river and harbor bill was considered in a business like way in the senate to-day, and as predicted Senator Brown helped up Georgia. It took excellent management to obtain the $15,000 for the Savannah above Augusta, and $10,000 more for Brunswick. I think our representatives will carry the senator's amendments through the house.

THE INTERNAL REVENUE BILL.

The senate will hardly reach the internal revenue bill at this session. We have little to regret at this delay for in the house bill the south finds little relief, though upon it have borne most heavily the burdens of a system now generally acknowledged to be unjust. A strong effort to amend the bill will be made when it comes up in the senate, but I fear the ruling desire there, as in the house, will be to first care for the capital of the country and to toss only the crumbs of legislation to the agricultural interests.

THE NAVY

has been discussed from beginning to end in the house. To-day Mr. Hewitt, of New York, in a brief but very clear speech, showed the folly of wasting three or four millions on Robeson's policy of patching up the unwieldy monitors. Hewitt's speeches are always good, for they invariably bear the fruits of careful study of the subject discussed. His work this session has been strictly first-class, and he commands the close attention of the house whenever he chooses to express his opinion of any measure. In the practical suggestions and the business snap of Secretary Chandler promise of a decent navy is given if congress will catch step and do its duty. Chandler could throw no better light on his unenviable career in the past than by establishing reforms in a department which seems to have been hitherto a machine for jobs and a soft berth for weak-brained politicians.

I am as much amused as disgusted with old Robeson. Without the least spirit of resentment he has gone through the long debate on the naval bill with not a day to pass without some scathing attack on his miserable record in the cabinet until to-day Mr. Whitthorne denounced him in terms of unmeasured violence. But even that did not penetrate his tegumen or move one feature of the gross Falstaffian face. His stolid indifference to insult, to exposure of his frauds, and to proofs of his rascality is the coolest and most provoking thing I ever saw. Nothing could possibly be said to arouse him. He even surpasses Keifer, who takes abuse with a charming indifference. Yet Robeson throws out mean insinations and brings men of spirit to their feet to hurl their indignant replies against his iron-clad carcass. So this old creature goes absolutely secure, because already the whole catalogue of invective has been exhausted on him without the slightest visible effect. Yet this man is the leader of the republican party in the forty-seventh congress.

TAKING TIME BY THE FORELOCK.

The democrats are so confident of having the next house that already there are speculations as to the disposal of the prizes a victory will bring. Among these the most glittering is the speakership, and for it more than one set of wires are already being pulled. Mr. Randall is a standing candidate for this honor, but he will find a strong antagonism in the next house if it is democratic. Not only was he arbitrary in many of his rulings, but he is accused of carrying his personal preferences into the chair. Mr. Reagan openly said that he packed the commerce committee of the last house against the policy of liberal appropriations. Randall's strong protection views would also operate against him. Carlisle, the real leader of the democrats, could command a large and non-sectional support for speaker. Kenna, of West Virginia, though only about thirty-eight, is already looked on as a possible speaker, and would make an excellent officer. Sunset Cox has had his ambition for the gavel so cruelly nipped that he will hardly try to make it bud again. Cox belongs on the floor, where his remarkably quick wit is always in demand. It may seem premature to be guessing at events so far ahead, but if politicians are figuring on them a poor scribe may be allowed to refer to their calculations.

OUR FAST MAIL

seems always coming and never here. Two recent disappointments leave us more doubtful of securing its benefits soon. Superintendent Thompson is in constant correspondence with the authorities of the Richmond and Danville, but one hitch and another occurs and we have to jog on with the old slow schedule. The fast mail must be only a question of time—and of little time. The demand for it in the north is strong, and in Atlanta its invigorating effects are felt instantly. Howe seems to have some old-fashioned notions. He tries to keep down the growing demand for cheaper postage, and I don't think he takes much stock in fast mails. But these things can't wait on Mr. Howe, and over him they will go if he persists in standing in their way. Thompson is a live man, who has an enthusiasm for everything sharp and quick about the service, and I believe he will give us the fast mail as quick as he can. Railroad men are talking of a conference of the authorities in the Southern Railway and Steamship association to be held in Atlanta some time this month to consider what steps are necessary in view of the present and threatened troubles in the pool. For several weeks discussions and contentions have portended the withdrawal of some leading lines, but not enough to leave any question as to the continuance of the pool rates on most of the lines now in the pool. A war of rates and consequent heavy losses during the summer is not improbable.

POINTS.

Virginian's say the democrats will probably nominate Parson Massey, the bolting readjuster for congressman-at-large. They add that Massey is the most effective stumper in the state and could beat easily John S. Wise whom the Mahone crowd mean to put out.

We have just had a week of panting and fanning, and a change that eclipses Atlanta's best effort. Overcoats were common on the streets to-day. To-night fires and blankets are in order.

Andrew Clark is settling his accounts with the government. He left a good record in the office of collector.

Mr. Stephens was heartily congratulated by his many callers on the result of the Georgia primaries.

The most active individuals now to be seen are Mr. Atkins and Colonel Farrow.

Ben Butler hangs around Washington very little. F. H. R.

THE HENNEPIN CANAL.

The Improvement of the Mississippi—The Internal Revenue Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—In the senate Mr. Beck said that as several amendments to the house bill regulating internal revenue had been reported this morning, from the republican caucus of last night, he gave notice of amendment subjecting the duties on imports from abroad, after January 1st, 1883, to a discount of ten per cent, and after July 1st, 1883, to ten per cent additional discount. Referred to the finance committee.

THE HENNEPIN CANAL.

The river and harbor bill was taken up and the Hennepin canal project was further discussed, the question being upon Mr. Butler's amendment providing for an additional survey and report upon the cost of construction, the annual maintenance and the use of the canal. After a long discussion, Mr. Butler's amendment was carried—ayes, 29; nays, 21. Various modifications of the plan suggested by Messrs. Logan and Allison then prevailed without objection. On motion of Mr. Logan, a provision was added for a survey of the Illinois and Michigan canal, and estimates of the cost of enlarging the same, etc. The question recurring upon the committee's amendment as amended, the yeas and nays were called. Pending the vote, the discussion was resumed. Mr Pendleton moved to strike out the authority to the secretary of war to determine and locate the route of the canal so as to avoid the possibility of a construction that the government was committed to the work. Carried. Of the twenty-nine votes for the Butler amendment, twenty three came from the democratic side. Messrs. Davis, of Illinois, Gorman, Pugh, Ransom and Walker voted no, and the other negative responses were republicans. The committee's amendment as modified was adopted. It provides for a survey of the Hennepin canal route, with estimates of the cost of construction and the annual cost of maintenance, and use when completed, and for a survey of the Illinois and Michigan canal, and an estimate of the cost of enlarging it, etc, so as to make its dimensions correspond with the Hennepin connection, and appropriates $100,000 for this purpose. The report is to be made at the next session. The remaining committee amendments were agreed to. A discussion followed on an amendment offered and advocated by Mr. Frye, prohibiting the expenditure of any part of the five million dollars appropriated for the Mississippi river for levees in reclaiming or protecting lands, or otherwise than in deepening the channel and improving navigation. Mr. Jones quoted the provision in the bill to show that it expressly prohibited the building of levees except where, in the judgment of the river commission, these are necessary as a part of its plan to afford ease and safety to the commerce of the river and to deepen the channels. He regarded the amendment as substantially identical but less desirable. Mr. Kellogg argued that the amendment would unnecessarily restrict and handicap the commission and retard them in closing the gaps. The amendment was rejected—16 to 39. Mr. Ransom, from the special committe on the Potomac flats, reported an amendment appropriating $500,000 for the improvement of the Potomac river in the vicinity of Washington, with reference to navigation, the establishment of harbor lines, and the raising of the flats. After a long discussion upon its relevancy under the rules, the amendment was held to be in order upon a viva voce vote. No further action upon the subject was taken, and the bill went over until Monday. The senate adjourned.

THE SUNDRY CIVIL BILL.

In the house, Mr. Crapo, of Massachusetts, submitted a report of the conference committee on the bill to enable national banks to extend their corporate existence. Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, made a point of order that the report was not accompanied with the explanatory statement required by the rules, and the point being sustained the conference report was withdrawn, but Mr. Crapo will endeavor to get it before the house during the afternoon. The house, at 11:20, went into committee of the whole (Mr. Kasson, of Iowa, in the chair) on the sundry civil appropriations bill, the pending amendment being that offered by Mr. Converse, of Ohio, striking out the proviso restricting the investigations of the national board of health to the diseases of cholera and yellow fever. After some debate the amendment was rejected. Mr. Peele, of Indiana, offered and advocated an amendment including smallpox among the diseases to be investigated by the board. Adopted. Mr. Willis, of Kentucky, rose to reply to some criticisms made by Mr. White, of Kentucky, and was proceeding to attack the latter in turn, when he was interrupted by Mr. Brown, of Indiana, who objected to a repetition of yesterday's disorderly and disgraceful scenes. Mr. Willis persisted, but was finally choked off by objections, and his speech was not even permitted to be printed in the Record. After concluding consideration of 43 of the 85 pages of the bill, the committee rose. The house, at 4:45, adjourned.

THE DOYLE BONDS.

SECRETARY FOLGER DETAILS THEIR HISTORY.

A Description and Narrative of the Genuine Issue—The Arrest of Doyle and the Contents of His Pocket—Tracing Out Irresponsible Rumors—Detectives Employed.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Secretary Folger has furnished for publication a statement of the origin and results of the investigation concerning the so-called "Doyle bond plate." The secretary says that so much has been said in the public prints about the Doyle bonds that it is well to make an explicit statement in regard thereto. They are counterfeits of the United States bonds known as "six-percents of '81," and only of the $1,000 denomination of that issue of genuine bonds. There were issued in all $110,650,000 in amount, which were separately numbered from 1 to 110,650 inclusive. When they were issued a record was made of all of them in a book, wherein the number of each bond was entered and the number of all of the bonds were shown. All of the genuine bonds have been redeemed and cancelled, except $278,000; and interest ceased to run on all of them in 1881.

IDENTIFYING THE GENUINE ISSUE.

When anyone of these bonds has been offered for redemption the number it bore has been noticed; the record book has been referred to to see if the bond of that number had ever been offered before. It has then been scrutinized in other respects, and when accepted and redeemed an entry has been made upon the book that shows that the bond of the number has been paid off and cancelled. It is the fact that there has never been offered for redemption a duplicate of a bond heretofore redeemed; that is to say, never have two bonds of the same number been offered. It is also the fact that there has never been offered for redemptiom a bond with a number higher than or different from the same genuine number recorded in the book. The significance of these facts will be seen further on.

THE DOYLE BONDS.

The existence of the counterfeit bonds, the Doyle bonds, was not known to any branch of this department until October, 1880, when Doyle was arrested in Chicago, and the spurious bonds were found in his possession. It afterwerds appeared that three of the spurious bonds had been before that pledged as collateral with a bank in Peoria, Illinois. There were then taken from him in all 204 of the spurious bonds, with one $30 coupon attached to each bond, and fourteen detached coupons of the same kind and denomination, and these bonds that had been thus pledged were after that surrendered to the officers of the secret service force of the government, making in all 207 bonds. It has been stated in the public prints that $22,000,000 in the nominal amount of the spurious bonds were struck off by the counterfeiters, and that many of them have been put in circulation. Here is where the significance is to be felt of the fact above stated. Surely if that amount of bonds, or a little of it, had been placed in the hands of innocent holders, long ago would some of the bonds have been recorded for redemption, for it is not to be supposed that with the whole amount of genuine bonds outstanding reduced to $278,000, and with the interest no longer running on them, there would be innocent holders of spurious bonds believing them to be genuine, so wealthy or so careless as not to bring them forward for redemption. Had they been offered a comparison of the number of them, with the book of record of the genuine bonds would have disclosed the fact that the duplicate, or higher numbers existed. That fact never having appeared, it is thought, to be conclusive that the story is baseless of the large amount printed and put in circulation. It has also been stated in the same way that more than 204 of the spurious bonds were found on Doyle, and that by the act or connivance of some officer or officers of the secret service some of the excess over that number have been set afloat. Premising that the 204 found on Doyle, and the three pledged with the Illinois bank, and the coupons attached to them, and the fourteen detached coupons are now in the custody of the officers of the government, and by acutual count lately made, are shown to be there, it is further to be said that the belief that no more exists than as above stated, rests upon the official reports of officers of the secret service made on official oath, and upon investigations lately had.

A SUBSEQUENT INVESTIGATION.

It was stated that more were captured with Doyle, and some rumors to the same effect having a show of truth, come to the hearing of this department, a special agent of the treasury and a detective from the assistant treasurer's office at New York, neither of them in any wise connected with the secret service of the government, and acting without knowledge of that service, were detailed to ferret out the matter. They have reported to this department that nothing has yet been found to give a color of truth to the rumor. It is almost certain that no more were ever in the possession of Doyle than the 207 above spoken of. Quite as important a matter is the statement that the plate from which the spurious bonds were struck was either itself genuine or was reproduced from genuine dies and work, and that the means of doing so were furnished from within the department. I am thoroughly satisfied that these allegations are entirely unfounded. The secretary then relates how he has become satisfied that the bonds are counterfeit. The plate brought here by Detective Felker, of Chicago, acting in behalf of Doyle, from which Doyle's bonds were printed, was submitted to three experts, who, after long and careful examination, each submitted a report to the secretary. Neither of these experts knew what the conclusions of his associates were and their reports were prepared entirely independent of each other. Each arrived at the conclusion that no part of the bonds were printed from a genuine plate, or from a plate which had been copied from a genuine plate. These experts were Homer Lee, president of the Homer Lee bank note company, of New York, an expert engraver; J. S Rhodes, secretary of the New York photo-electrotype company, an expert metallurgist; who analyzed portions of the plate in question; and G. W. Marlor, chief clerk in the sub-treasury in New York, chosen for his known skill in recognizing genuine and detecting counterfeit issues of bonds and notes of the United States. Moreover, Secretary Folger points out the fact that the genuine bonds of the issue which was counterfeited were printed by a bank note company before the work of engraving and printing was undertaken by the treasury department. A record exists in the department that, with a single exception, all the plates used in printing these bonds were destroyed at the Washington navy yard under the supervision of a committee appointed for that purpose. The exception is a die which is now in the treasury department, which served an important part in settling the fact of the fraudulency of the bonds. The impression on the Doyle bonds purporting to correspond with this die, showed that the counterfeiter was not in possession of this, the only remaining portion of the genuine plate. Secretary Folger has exhausted every means of setting at rest the many disputed questions involved. He has taken much time and rests satisfied that the charges that the counterfeiters had confederates in the employ of the bureau of engraving and printing of the treasury department, are false, equally with the bonds themselves.

THE PANIC IN EGYPT.

How the Army of Invasion Will Land—Its Mode of Operation.

LONDON, July 8.—A dispatch to the Times from Paris says that the formal invitation of the powers to the porte asking it to intervene in Egypt will be delivered on Monday. A reply is asked for by Wednesday. If the porte refuses or seems afraid to accept. 25,000 men with 15,000 in reserve, will be concentrated by the intervening powers. The army will land at Aboukir, and will be divided into two parts—one will march on Alexandria and be supported by the fleet, which will open fire as soon as the army is landed; the other portion will cross the dry lake of Aboukir to Kafrdever and seize the railway at Damanhour, Arabi Pasha's only means of retreat, and will thus force him to either fight or yield. A portion of the Grenadier guards and the Household cavalry have undergone medical inspection with a view to foreign service. The admiralty have telegraphed to the duke of Edinburgh, admiral superintendent of the national reserves, instructing him to keep the reserves squadron at Gibraltar. The British iron clad Achilles and torpedo depot ship, Hecla, have sailed for Alexandria. The Times correspondent, at Alexandria, telegraphs that the Egyptians under General Yussef, who were defeated by the false prophet, numbered 5,000 The fight occurred near Kerdefan. The Egyptians lost six cannon. The diplomatic agent of France telegraphed yesterday to the French consul at Cairo that an attack by the fleet was momentarily expected, and instructing him to send all French subjects away, and to place himself and the archives of his office in security. The consul placarded the telegram in Cairo, thereby causing a renewed panic, and came himself to Alexandria. The Austrian consulate in Cairo has also been closed. The panic in Alexandria is unabated. Despite the complete stoppage of work on the fortifications, which had occasioned Admiral Seymour's protest, the exodus of Europeans continues.

Numbers of fugitives have been forced to return into town, finding no room on board the two steamers leaving to-day, which refused to start until 300 passengers had been taken off each vessel. The cash offices of the public debt department has been transferred from Cairo to Alexandria, and the staff of that office have gone on board the English and French ships. Major-General Sir Archibald Allison, chief of the intelligence department of the war office, will proceed to Malta immediately. Two regiments on foot have left Aldershott for Gibraltar. A dispatch from Paris to Reuter's telegram company states that government will ask the chamber of deputies to-day for a credit of £312,000 for precautionary preparations made by the minister of Marine. The Central News correspondent at Paris says the expedition to Egypt will comprise twenty vessels with 147 guns and 8,280 men.

EX-SENATOR WEST'S NOMINATION

W. A. Black for Postmaster at Americus—A Treasury Call for Six Per Cents.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The senate committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the nomination of ex-Senator West for district commissioner, agreed to-day to report to the senate in favor of his confirmation. There was considerable opposition on the part of the democratic members of the committee, based upon West's political course in Louisiana, and the vote in his favor was strictly a party one.

The president to-day nominated W. A. Black to be postmaster at Americus, Ga.

The secretary of the treasury will, on Monday next, issue a call for $16,000,000 of six per cent bonds, continued at 3½ per cent from July 1st, 1881. The principal and accrued interest will be paid at the treasury department on the 13th of September next and interest will cease after that day. The following is the description: Fifty dollars—numbers 801 to 900, both inclusive; $100—numbers 5,501 to 6,500, both inclusive; $500—numbers 3,601 to 4,150, both inclusive; $1,000—numbers 19,001 to 21,000, both inclusive; $5,000—numbers 6,401 to 6,900, both inclusive; $10,000—numbers 12,501 to 14,650, both inclusive.

The commissioner of the general land office has directed the issue of a patent to John Lowe and others, and the claim to the Lowe mill grant, comprising 16,000 acres of land situated in Alachua county, Fla. Representative Lowe, of Alabama, is one of the heirs to the property, which is reported to be of great value.

Only about fifty members were present at the republican caucus to-night, and consequently nothing was done. Another caucus will be held next week.

DESPERATE CONVICTS.

Escaping by Throwing Lime in the Guards's Face—Shot and Captured.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 8.—News has been received here of a remarkable jail delivery at Neosho, in this state Jack Sheldon, for the murder of Lawrence Smith last January; Tom Beeson, grand larceny, and Bill Beavers, for robbery, broke jail by throwing lime in the face of Jailer Henry Nutt while allowing them to use the corridor in their afternoon exercise. As soon as the lime was thrown a break was made for the outer door, knocking down the guard and bursting open the door. The three then endeavored to make their escape by running. Jailer Nutt fired three ineffectual shots at Beeson. Nutt's son shot Beeson down about two hundred yards from the jail. By this time the excitement was at fever heat, and one hundred men were hurrying toward the jail. Chase was then given the other two fugitives. Mr. Beeson captured Beavers one mile from the jail after Beavers had dismounted a boy and taken his horse. Sheldon took refuge in a forty-acre piece of thick woods. A hundred men, in charge of Sheriff James McElhaney, surrounded the woods, the number increasing all the time. As Sheldon is a very hard case, the entire town was desirous of his capture, which was effected at 8:30 o'clock. He being anxious to change his quarters, and not being familiar with the ground, walked into two guards, who shot him down. He was then taken to the court house, where Drs. Dalton and Walls were called in to examine his wounds, which were found to be in his back. He is now resting easily and under a strong guard.

WAR IN CAROLINA.

A Succession of Fights Grow Out of One Political Difficulty Near Statesville.

RALEIGH, July 8.—There is great excitement at Statesville, N. C. On Saturday last ex-Congressman W. M. Robbins made a political speech and commented on the administration of Dr. J. J. Mott, ex-revenue collector. On Thursday, M. L. Mott, son of Dr. Mott, assaulted Robbins, injuring him severely. From this sprung an assault of William Stockton, revenue officer, on James Adams, state solicitor, breaking Adams's arm. John E. Osborne, a dry goods clerk, expressed indignation, and C. S. Cooper, a brother of Thomas Cooper, the present revenue collector, abused Osborne roundly, when the latter drew a pistol and fired twice at Cooper, wounding him twice painfully, but not dangerously. The matter is to be at once investigated in the courts.

Lottery Men Found Guilty.

Special Dispatch to The Constitution.

ST. LOUIS, July 8.—The first case against the lottery men ended this afternoon when the jury, after being out one hour, returned into the court finding the three defendants, Herman Bruner, John Black and John Giordan, guilty and assessing their punishment as follows: Bruner and Black two years in the penitentiary and Giordan six months in jail.

BUZZ AND BOUNCE.

THE GOSSIP THEY HEAR IN NEW YORK.

Spicy Talks and Bright Anecdotes of the Men and Things Past and Present in the Metropolis of the New World—Jay Gould's Wonderful Greenhouse—Theatrical Facts.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Jack Haverly has sold his right, title and interest in his colored minstrel troupe for $12,000 cash to Mr. Charles Frohman, who will call them from Europe and consolidate them with Callender's minstrels, a company organized by himself and brother.

On the Fourth of July I visited Jay Gould's estate and conservatories at Lyndehurst. This is said to be incomparably the finest flower garden in America. The estate comprises 500 acres. Gould's mansion is built near the center of the estate on a hill overlooking the entire grounds. The building is of Sing Sing marble and was erected by General Paulding of revolutionary fame. It was very much improved by valuable additions made by Mr. Merritt, who bought it from General Paulding. Mr. Gould, who bought it from Merritt, has added much to the house by interior decorations and has beautified the grounds until it is one of the foremost flower gardens of the world. Since Mr. Gould bought the place he has spent a fortune in drainage alone. Over 95,000 feet of drain pipes 6 by 3 have been laid to carry the waste waters into the river, and there have been 5,000 feet of 12-inch tiles driven at different portions of the place. He has just let out a contract of $100,000 to complete the drainage of the place The new conservatory is built in shape of Greek cross and is absolutely fire-proof. It is 400 feet long and 23 wide. The central room, containing collections of ferns and palms is 87 feet deep and 80 feet long—the wings are each 80 feet long, 25 wide—besides an addition in the rear 250 feet by 18 for propagation. There is 75,000 feet of double thick glass in the building. The building is heated by steam from six boilers. Mr. Mangold, who has been for 18 years gardner for the estate, and for 20 years prior to that time was in charge of the conservatories of the King of Hanover, estimates that there are from 6,000 to 8,000 varieties of plants in this conservatory. These are the products of every clime and country. In one room there are 400 varieties of roses. In another room there are 400 varieties of palms, about 100 of these are from Asia. Some of the specimens cost from $250 to $300 each. There are 40 varieties of "the Pitcher" plant from Madagascar alone. There are 100 varieties of Crotons from the Fiji and Solomon islands. Sixty varieties of Marantas from the Amazon river. One room is filled with geraniums. I saw over 100 different varieties of double geraniums in full bloom. The collection of collodiums is very large. There are 200 varieties of camelias from Japan and China. 500 varieties of plants from Central America, East Indies and Archipelago islands; 300 varieties of ferns from Central and South America, including some very rare tree-ferns; 120 varieties of gloxcinea, 60 kinds of promalacias, the largest collection in the world of trecenas, 400 varieties of azaleas, and many kinds of Indian rhododendrons. In a separate section there are 1,200 orchids, many of which were in bloom.

One or two sections are devoted to exotic grapes. His open-air flower garden covers over three acres Large orchards and vineyards; most of the varieties are imported.

Minnie Myrtle, the first wife of Joaquin Miller, died a few days ago at the Woman hospital, after long illness and great suffering. During her illness Miller, her divorced husband, who has a second wife and a child, treated her with great kindness and affection. He sent her flowers and fruit every day and did everything in his power to make her last days comfortable. She became reconciled, and all of the old love returned to the husband she had driven from home, and she died blessing him. Most of our readers, especially the ladies, will remember his farewell to "Myrrh." I append a few verses of the poem, recalled by this sad parting in death:

"Farewell! for here the ways at last
Divide—diverge, like Nellu'd Nile
Which after desert dangers pass'd
Of many and many a thousand mile
As constant as a column stone
Seeks out the sea, Divorced—alone.

And you and I have buried love,
And red seal on the coffin's lid;
The clerk below, the court above,
Pronounced it dead; the corpse is hid,
And I who never crossed your will
Consent that you may have it still.

And you will come some summer eve,
When wheels the white moon on her track,
And hear the plaintive night-bird grieve,
And heed the crickets clad in black;
Alone—not far—a little spell,
And say, "well, yes, he loved me well"

I make no murmur; steady, calm;
Sphinx like I gazed on days ahead.
No wooing word, no pressing palm,
No sealing love with lips seal red,
No waiting for some dusk or dawn,
Or sacred hour . . . all are gone.

I go alone; no little hands
To lead me from forbidden ways;
No little voice in other lands
Shall cheer through all the weary days:
Yet these are yours, and that to me
Is much indeed . . . So let it be . . .

A large crowd can be seen daily on Sixth avenue, near Twenty-third street, giving audience to Jim Blaine, who amuses them by swearing, whistling, shouting, singing, laughing and speaking in the most dissolute manner. He seems flattered at the attention of the crowd, and shows his appreciation of the applause of the multitude as only a true statesman can. In this case Jim Blaine is a parrot and said to be the most accomplished bird in the world. He can speak with distinctness from 75 to 100 sentences, whistles quite a number of tunes with remarkable clearness and sings rollocking songs with the freedom and abandon of a sailor Mr. Holden, the great bird man, his owner, offers him for sale at $800, but said told that he really did not care to sell him at that price, as he was of great value in attracting custom to his store and in demonstrating the possibilities of a well-taught parrot. Jim Blaine is a green parrot, which is considered an inferior and duller grade than African and Double Yellow-head, which makes his accomplishments more noteworthy.

By the way, training parrots has become quite an industry in New York. Young parrots are exported from Cuba, Central America and Africa in lots ranging from one to ten thousand, the largest single invoice ever received being 15,000 to Holden, about a year ago. The price of these young, untaught birds ranged from $3 to $25, according to age and species. Talkers range $50 to $250. Some extraordinary orators and whistlers can command $500 A good trainer can take twenty-five young birds and in a season easily trible his money three times over by selling them back to the dealer he purchased from, and can make even more by selling direct to rich people, who want good talkers and are indifferent about the price they pay.

The bullfinch, a pretty bunch of grey and red, is a great favorite with bird fanciers. He is very tame and is never so happy as when perched on your finger eating hemp seed from your hand, as a reward for piping your favorite tunes. Untaught, they are worth about $5, while one trained to pipe "God save the queen," this being usually the first tune learnt them on account of their being an English bird and the English being their principal purchasers, an air from one or two popular operas will sell readily from $25 to $40 and occasionally as high as $50. They are trained by putting a dozen or more in a darkened room. The trainer whistles the same tune over and over to them, never allowing them to hear any other tune or anybody else whistle. After awhile one of the birds will take up the tune and carry it as far as he can and when he becomes puzzled he stops. A bullfinch never makes a mistake. What he is not certain of succeeding in he will not attempt. When one bird stops another takes up the tune and so on. After the trainer sees that one or more birds can pipe the tune through he leaves them to themselves until they all know this tune by heart. Then he commences to teach them their second song. Other trainers make a good living learning jackdaws and magpies tricks. They are great clowns and afford a great deal of amusement in an aviary. A well selected aviary of from a dozen to twenty birds sells at from $100 to $150. They are very popular in Fifth avenue windows.

I attended a Chinese funeral the other day. As the procession dragged its slow length along, two Celestials that rode on the hearse scatters along the route tiny fragments of closely written Chinese manuscript torn into queer irregular shapes. These queer epistolary freaks puzzled me so that I stopped to pick up some of the stray bits of paper with a view of solving the mystery, but was afterwards as much in the dark as ever. Yesterday my washee explained to me as the theory of a Chinese funeral, that while the devil stopped by the wayside to collect the paper waifs the hearsemen had given to the wind and decipher their contents the friends of the deceased had time to hide him so deep under the ground that the arch fiend could never find him. Hi wendor if my washee was giving me taffy or not?

The present price of ice is $3 per ton, or 35 cents per one hundred pounds, and among shopkeepers and housekeepers, generally, the idea seems to prevail that, taking all things into consideration, it should be much cheaper than it is. There are in New York fifteen ice companies, large and small, besides a few small dealers who, as a rule, themselves buy from the large companies. The quantity of ice annually sold in the city amounts to nearly 700,000 tons, and it is computed that there is an annual increase in demand of 15 per cent. The ice supply of the city is obtained mainly from the Hudson and Kennebec rivers.

All of the fashionables are engaged in painting tambourine covers. Little ones are used as dinner cards. The Pompeians used to have them for the same purpose.

The Madison Square will run Mrs. Barnett's Esmeralda all summer. The theater is as cool as ice can make it, and really is an elegantly upholstered refrigerator.

A new and important postal order went into effect on the 1st of July, and though it is now strictly enforced all over the country, the law is not generally known. It is in reference to unstamped, or insufficiently stamped letters. According to the old law if a letter was weighed and found to be lacking proper postage, the letter was marked due so much and forwarded to its destination and then the unpaid postage was collected. Under the new law a letter insufficiently stamped is detained and the person to whom it is addressed is given notice by postal card that on receipt of the amount of postage due his letter will be forwarded to him. In case the letter is addressed to a distant city considerable delay will be caused by the time spent in the sending of the notice and the return of the postage.

When "the Wall street excursion train," as it is called on account of the large number of bankers and brokers that happened to be aboard, jumped off the bridge, on its way from New York to Long Branch, General Grant was in the smoking car. He was plunged ten feet under water, and when he managed to get to shore, without his hat, his clothes soiled and torn, and his knee badly bruised, he still had clinched between his teeth the limp stump of a cigar. A friend stepped up to the General and offered him a hat. The ex-president replied:

"No. I don't care for a hat; but if you have a dry cigar about you, it will be acceptable, as all of mine are wet."

Colonel Fred Grant was in a broker office on Wall street when he heard the train which his father was on had fell through a bridge. With apparent unconcern, he said:

"Oh! my father comes through all sorts of things. In the early times of the war my mother used to be very uneasy about him, fearing he would be killed or wounded in some battle. But after a year or two she got over that and her only anxiety was then to know whether he had got beaten or won the day. I have no doubt he is all right."

The London correspondent of the Herald telegraphs: There seems to be great business doing in transfers of talent between England and America. Mr. George Grossmith, the original admiral in "Pinafore," the general in the "Pirates," and Bunthorne in "Patience," is said to be going to New York next season. If it is true that we are to have Clara Morris, Mary Anderson and Fanny Davenport from you, we will let George go without a pang.

The figures compiled by direction of Mr. John J. Gorman, president of the fire department, show that in the six months ending on the 30th of June last the building bureau of this city approved plans for 1,365 new buildings that are estimated to cost $26,048,705, and for 1,998 alterations to buildings, to cost $2,747,532. During the same six months the Brooklyn building bureau approved plans for new buildings to cost $4,831,000 and for alterations to buildings to cost $146,000. Thus in the first half of this year capitalists have taken out permits to add more than $31,000,000 to the taxable real estate of the two cities.

Lily Brown, a pretty girl of 15, dressed in boys' clothes, was arraigned before Justice Kilbreth yesterday. She made the following statement: "My parents are both dead, Father was a cutter in a clothing store, and used me as a model for boys clothes. When father died I knew I couldn't make a living if I was dressed as a girl, so I took a suit of boys' clothes, and have supported myself ever since. I've been a messenger boy, newsboy and bootblack."

POINTS.

The children's aid society propose giving during the present week as many as 1,000 boys a picnic to the summer home at Bath. They go down in companies of about 200 each on different days.

Mrs. C. M. Raymond, nee Miss Anna Louise Cary, give her friends a chance to become accustomed to the change by sending them "at homes" after the 15th of October, at No. 20 Fifth avenue.

Mary Anderson's steam yacht, "The Galatea," is said to be very fast. The yacht has made more reputation in that line than Miss Mary.

I met Colonel L. N. Trammell, of Georgia, yesterday. He and Colonel Tom N. Norwood are now in sympathy with each other.

I take pleasure in noting that there is not a single sun flower in Jay Gould's famous flower garden at Lyndehurst.

Mary Anderson has promised that while in Europe she will eschew chewing gum.

Anna Louise Carey has lost her voice but gained a husband. BUZZ AND BOUNCE.

DETROIT July 8.—Two funs at Grand Lodge were urned this morning, and a man named Ben McMillan, who went to bed drunk, perished. He was bachelor in good circumstances.

GEORGIA TOWNS.

THEIR PEOPLE AND THEIR DAILY PURSUITS.

A Long Budget of News From Dalton—Motion for a New Trial of Durham Refused—Society and Politics in Milledgeville—A North Georgia Note—Gainesville Gossip.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution.

DALTON, July 8.—The opening ball last night at Catoosa Springs, was a grand success. Several young people went up from this place and participated in the pleasures of the evening. The springs are open and numbers of visitors arriving daily, the gentlemanly proprietors and managers are all attention in making the guests enjoy themselves in all manner of innocent amusements. A large number of visitors will arrive next week who have already made arrangements.

Last Tuesday morning Dalton had a sensation in the way of a jail delivery. The prisoners confined in county jail, succeeded in making an opening over the iron cage door, and three of them making their escape to the hall of jail, awaited Jailer Echols coming to give them breakfast. Just as he unlocked the door and opened it, the three rushed upon him and knocked him down. He held on to one. With his calls for help he succeeded in having another one caught, and only one made good his escape. Fortunately, he was not a very desperate character. Much credit is due Jailer Echols for his heroic conduct. There were eight prisoners in jail at the time, but only the one escaped. A match game of base ball Wednesday, between the Sunflowers and Crawfords, of this place, was a draw game—fifteen scores each—nine innings. Base ball is all the rage up this way this season. A sociable was the amusement of Wednesday evening last at the National, in honor of several visiting young ladies. The young people enjoyed the evening hugely. The Misses Lewis, hostess of the National, spared no pains to make the evening pleasant. Misses Jessie Reynolds, of Marietta, Ga., and Alva Thomas, of Atlanta, two charming and interesting young ladies, have been spending the week with Captain John F. Reynolds, this city. Miss Bertha Dickinson, an interesting Virginia young lady, is visiting friends in this city. Miss Dixie Wilkes left for Sumack, Ga., yesterday to take charge of the music department of the Sumack seminary, a flourishing institution of learning.

A kerosene lamp caught fire on Hamilton street an evening or two ago, which caused considerable excitement until Mr. Ralph Ellison's heroic efforts to extinguish it proved successful.

The juvenile club met last Thursday evening at the residence of Dr. Wootten, Thornton avenue. A gay evening was spent by the juveniles. Mr. A. H. Nunnally, of this place, had his hand badly scalded a few days ago by steam and water from an engine; a very painful injury, but is improving.

The abundance of rain in this section is doing some damage to the wheat that has not been threshed.

The glorious Fourth was quietly celebrated in Dalton.

DAWSON.

Motion for New Trial of Durham Refused—Politics and Prosperity.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution.

DAWSON, July 7.—Judge Hood has refused the motion for a new trial made by counsel for Dr. W. R. Durham, who was convicted of murder at the May term of Terrell superior court. The case will now go to the supreme court.

The delegates to the approaching congressional convention from this county are, G. O. Hill and M. P. Hoyl. They will favor the nomination of Hon. H. G. Turner. In the senatorial convention for this district, Terrell county will be represented by William Kaigler, U. L. Weston, W. B. Oxford and T. K. Cobb.

Mr. Charles E. Holliday, our clever telegraph operator here, left yesterday on a recreative trip, to extend through the west and north. Our town continues to improve, and the sound of the hammer is heard in several directions. Hood and Kaigler have just had built a new structure as an addition to their brick warehouse. Mr. O. B. Stevens has recently had erected a spacious building to be used as a guano warehouse. This gentleman and Mr. G. M. Roberts are now having built a two-story livery stable, situated just south of Stroms' cotton warehouse. Dr. W. C. Paschal is having a new steam cotton gin erected on the northeast corner of the public square and on north side of Lee street.

PALMETTO LEAVES.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution.

PALMETTO, July 8.—We have had plenty of rain. The crop prospect was never better. The farmers will not stop working in the crops until some time in next month. The fine growing weather makes the grass, corn and cotton grow. Business is dull. Money is certainly scarce in this section. Our railroad agent sold $60.75 worth of excursion tickets on the fourth of July to Atlanta. It was about one-third the amount that is usually sold on fourth of July excursions. It seems that economy has ruled this year so far, The Misses McCool, of East Point, Ga., are visiting retatives nere. Messrs. Stephens and Swanson, of LaGrange, Ga., are looking out a location to open business. Mr. W. C. McBride left last Tuesday to visit his old home, Raritan, N. J.; Horace Zellers returned from Jonesboro, Ga., after attending the commencement. Mr. Homer Arnold is expecting to visit Atlanta soon.

MILLEDGEVILLE MATTERS.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution.

MILLEDGEVILLE, July 7.—Mrs. Dr. Mark Johnston, whose serious illness has been mentioned, has entirely recovered much to the gratification of her friends and family. Daniel Tucker, youngest son of Judge Daniel Tucker, late deceased, died yesterday. The democratic party of our county will meet on the 15th instant, to select delegates to the state convention. It is doubtful as to the result. If the attendance is general Mr. Stephens and the majority rule will be recommended. Major Bacon is a great favorite with the people of our city and they are enthusiastic over his candidacy. As a general thing our country people are too busy trying to make a crop to devote much time to politics. They say the corn crop is assured and now they want all the cotton they can fairly get.

GAINESVILLE GOSSIP.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution.

GAINESVILLE, July 8.—The weather here is unusually cool. The thermometer this morning is 68° to 70°. We find that two quilts are not too heavy to be comfortable at times. Our hotels and boarding houses are rapidly filling up. The ball at New Holland last night was a decided success. Miss Emma High, of Madison, who has been stopping in our city, left for New Holland yesterday. Our county yesterday voted on the "fence" or "no fence" question. The vote was unusually small. There were 325 votes at this precinct and 47 majority for "no fence." The returns are not all in, but there is enough already known to justify me in saying that the county will stand, when the returns are in, 400 or 500 for "fence."

BARNESVILLE DULL.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution.

BARNESVILLE, July 8.—Barnesville is dull now after commencement. A number of our citizens are talking of spending a part of the summer at the watering places. Misses Carrie and Ella Stewart, of Macon, are guests of Miss Hamburger. Miss Sallie Dick, of Marietta, is visiting Miss Maybelle Powell. The family of W. H. Potter, editor of the Christian Advocate, are boarding in our city. Colonel W. R. Taylor, of Barnesville, has been mentioned by his friends as a fit candidate for representative from Pike.

A NORTH GEORGIA NOTE.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution.

CLEVELAND, July 6.—Large crops of wheat and oats and now corn is looking very well indeed. The gold mines in this section are paying very well. At the old Loud mine, three miles from here, they are carrying on very extensive operations and, judging from the perseverance they display, it must surely pay. Commercial interests are rather on a stand still now, as the farmers are all at home busy with their corn.

THEY DANCED AND THEY DANCED.

An Old-Time Scene at an Early County Barbecue.

From the Blakely, Ga., News.

The morning was a little threatening, but exceptionally cool and pleasant. Skirts of flying clouds obscured the sun, and gentle breezes sighed softly through the grass-carpeted forests of long waving pines through which we passed on our way thither. Beautiful wild flowers on either hand, dripping with dew drops, raised their blushing faces from their marshy couches and smiled sweetly as we passed them by. Indeed, the trip was very pleasant. Long before 10 o'clock, the whole hillside and grove near the mill was crowded with horses, oxen, mules and all kinds of vehicles, and the mill house was literally rammed, packed and jammed with a weltering, sweltering, conglomorated mass of restless humanity, all eager, anxious and impatient for the performances to begin. The tump, tump, tump, of the violin could be heard, dainty, nicely slippered little footsies peeped shyly out from under cool summer ruffles and patted time as the see-saw fiddler chased short snatches of music, and the stiff-collard youngsters, with glossy faces and long dusters, elbowed their way through the crowd making up the first set. 'Par ners on the floor!" cleared a space in the middle and set the joyous, jubilant young couples to bowing and bending and bobbing around. And they danced, and they danced, and tney danced, and then they changed partners, and they danced, and they danced, and they danced, and they 'jes kep a dancin',' and I wish I may die if I ever saw such dancin'. Old men patted their foots, young men shuffled in the corners, young lasses pranced up and down, and grandmother's waving fan forgot and kept time, time, time, with a sort of runic rhyme as the music was a gwine, gwine, gwine, and it was a bully time, you bet. By 12 o'clock the crowd had gathered, and "frum fur and neer they'd kum." Columbia, Gordon, Jackson county, Florida, stean mill, all out in Decatur, Miller, Colquitt, Cuba, Blakely, Ceder Springs, and the immediate neighborhood were all represented. A better dressed, more orderly and better looking assemblage, with fewer ugly and more pretty women in it would be hard to find anywhere—about a thousand in all. Down by the creek, under the shady trees, was stretched a long plank table, and on it was strewn enough nice barbecue to feed double the number. But barbecue was not all, for in addition to it, the ever provident ladies of the country around opened up oceans of all kinds of good vittles, and at one o'clock the word was given. And they eat, and they eat, and they eat, and you never saw the beat, the beat, the beat. All hands were full and stomachs, too, before they left the table, and that too of good, wholesome, well-done, sociable barbecue. After the dinner, the crowd went back to the mill house and again they danced, and they danced, and they danced and they danced—all day long they danced. No disturbance occurred, with one little exception, to mar the "equanimity of the occasion." At a late hour, those living at a distance began to start for home—one of whom your writer was which, and as he left they were still "a dancin'."

He Peppered Them.

From the Savannah, Ga., Recorder.

A man named Jones, living about five miles from the city, on the Ogeechee road, was visited last night by several young men from Savannah, who commenced making trouble. They apparently were full of whisky and sentiment, and undertook to serenade Mr. Jones, but he was a prosaic kind of a man, and instead of bringing out whisky and cigars to the howlers he took a double-barreled shotgun and steadying himself fired into the crowd. Yells and imprecations convinced him that his shot had taken effect. He then took an ax and went among the crowd to demolish them, but they scattered. Mr. Jones came to town and consulted Magistrate Waring Russell, Jr., in reference to the matter. There may be several arrests on account of the affair.

The Big Sunflower.

From the Bainbridge, Ga., Democrat.

In or description of the huge sunflower sent to our office last week, and mentioned in our last issue, there occurred a mistake. We should have said 35 inches in circumference instead of 19. It was from a volunteer plant which had received no attention. Mrs. Thompson is not only ahead of any one else in the production of sunflowers, but raised this season, a cabbage, which measured 63 inches in circumference; for which, and other delicious vegetables, or foreman bows his prettiest thanks.

Possum Snout's Dignity.

From the Carroll County, Ga., Times.

Tallapoosa, Haralson county, better known to most of our readers as Possum Snout, is putting on becoming dignity, since she is about to become a railroad town. Some time ago, we understand, a letter was received at that place addressed to Possum Snout, but it was sent promptly back indorsed "no such place."

A Top Crop.

From the Athens, Ga., Banner.

A gentleman tells us that besides making an extraordinary yield of Irish potatoes in the usual place, that his vines are actually bearing on top. Potatoes are sprouting out among the leaves, and grow very large. He had a vine on exhibition yesterday.

From the Sparta Ishmaelite.

The many typographical errors which crept into our last issue were due somewhat to the smoked glasses which our proof-reader had been looking through in his search for oats. The glasses have been laid aside, and we hope to present a cleaner sheet this week.

From the Montezuma Weekly.

An old farmer was in town last week looking for an editor's table, on which to build a hen's nest. He explained that he had learned from the papers that the biggest eggs were always lai on the editor's table, and he wished t ascertain whether the papers lied or not.

From the Danielsville Monitor.

Dr H Kinnebrew, of Clarke county, father of the junior editor of this paper, has an ostrich egg-shell that has been in the Kinnebrew family for 125 years. It was originally brought to America from Holland. This shell is as thick as ordinary paste-board. It is about the color of a goose egg and about twice as large, as it holds a quart.

AWFUL WAR STORIES.

BEING BURNED ALIVE AT THE STAKE NEAR GRIFFIN.

How a Negro Met His Death at the Hands of a Mob During the War—A Talk With an ex-Sheriff—An Irishman's Plucky Death—Six Men on the Scaffold—The Scene.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution.

I happened to be on the train the other day with Captain Parker Brown, an ex-sheriff of Henry county, when we accidentally drifted into a talk about Guiteau.

"That fellow was a terrible scoundrel," said Brown. "He should have been burnt at the stake."

"Did you ever see a man burned alive?" I asked.

"Yes, I saw a negro just at the outbreak of the war burnt near Griffin. I expect you remember it."

"Only partially, for I was only six years old when the war commenced. Tell me about the occurrence."

"Well," continued the ex-sheriff, "it was an awful affair, and I never want to see another like it. I do not remember the negro's name, but he had committed an outrage of so diabolical a nature on the person of a Miss Touchstone, now Mrs. Coppedge, that the people turned out en masse, scoured the woods and brought the villian to a justice court, at which Judge Lynch presided. Everybody then were much excited at the prospect of a war, and anything of this character was calculated to throw them into a frenzy. They knew the negro was the direct and only cause of the war, and when one of the dark skins misbehaved it proved a cold day for him. But this fellow had really which forbade all idea of carrying his case before a civil court, and hence when he was captured, it didn't take long to devise means for his disposal. The crowd was astonishingly large, and men had come from several counties around and even across counties beyond Spalding to assist in the fiend's capture. I suppose there must have been 3,000 present, possibly more. I only know that from a small posse, the number soon grew to a vast multitude. I guess you know what a loud talker Wash Manley is; well, Wash was there and acted as one of the leaders. He made things lively, too, as he always does. After a considerable waste of time and work it was decided to hang the negro, and forthwith a scaffold was erected. But it was doomed not to hold any carcas that day, if it never did afterwards. Just as everything was all ready to have the negro swing a big burly countryman arose in the crowd, stepped to the front and said:

"HOLD ON THAR!

Men, I have come all the way from Russellville, away down in Monroe county, to see this nigger git justice, and now I want him to have it. Hanging is too good for him, and I for one am in favor of burning him alive."

"Well, sir," continued Brown, "that speech seemed to take hold on the crowd like wildfire, and the next instant cries of 'Burn him!' 'Burn him!' came from a thousand throats. Well, in less time than it takes to tell it, the gallows was abandoned and men commenced to scour the woods for faggots. It only took a little while to build a heaping pile of lightwood knots, and then a stake about twelve feet high was driven into the ground. The negro was placed at the bottom and the pine and other wood was piled up around him. His feet were chained and his hands bound with a rope.

Now comes the wonderful part of the performance. The pile was first saturated thoroughly with turpentine and oil of some kind. The negro, I forgot to mention, belonged to Flem DuPre, who lives near Griffin now. As soon as he saw his chances all gone he commenced to beg very hard and said, "Oh, Mars Flem! Mars Flem! Mars Flem!" But it wasn't any use,

THE MOB WAS INFURIATED,

and the man had to go. When everything was ready one or two of the ring leaders made some negro men standing near apply the torch, and in an instant the condemned African was on the top of the stake, twelve feet above ground!"

"How in the world could that happen?" I eagerly asked, interrupting him.

"Why, as soon as he felt the first touch of fire, he loosed the cords on his hands by a superhuman effort, and by hugging the pole, shot up like a rocket! The crowd was fairly paralyzed with astonishment, at first, but in less than half a minute the tall blaze had even passed him. He yelled like a true fiend for a moment; then the cords holding his hands burnt in twain and his body swung backward and fell into the liquid flame and fire beneath."

"Was he entirely consumed?"

"All but his

HEART, LIVER AND LUNGS.

When the coals died into ashes these organs lay quivering upon the ground, the last remnants of one of the most diabolical wretches that ever lived."

"And so you think Guiteau should have been burned alive?" I asked.

"Yes, by all means. It is the only sure means of punishing a fiend as he deserves. I have seen men suffer death from every known cause, and nothing is so horrible as the stake. I was in the war, you know."

"Won't you tell me some of your war reminiscences, then?" I asked.

"Well, I don't mind, if they will interest you. I remember, once, seeing an Irishman during the war, shot for being found across the lines. They brought him into camp and when asked why he was beyond the lines, said:

"'Well, sirs, I was only going to see my dying mother for a bit, and I couldn't get a leave of absence. That's all there is in it?"

"But you are a deserter?"

"No, I ain't. I would have gone to my mother past the mouth of a belchin' cannon. No,

I AM NOT A DESERTER."

But the court martial thought differently, and so the poor fellow was sentenced to be shot. When he was brought out to the place where he was to meet his doom, his coffin was ready and lay on the ground beside him. Turning to it he gave a look of scorn, and said: "You black thing! When you hold me you'll have a brave heart to bury, for I am not afraid to die for my mother."

"Kneel," said the captain of the squad of twenty-four that stood in front with twelve loaded and twelve unloaded muskets, "and be blindfolded."

"I only kneel to God," said the plucky Irishman, "and I shall not be blindfolded, either. I'll face death with my eyes open."

Then the guard forced him to submit to the tying of an handkerchief over his eyes and stepped back to let the men fire.

"Never!" shouted the prisoner, and as the muskets were leveled, he had brushed the handkerchief to his forehead with his arm and the next instant he lay a corpse on the ground."

"I tell you," continued Captain Brown, "those were horrible days, and I never want to see another war. I recollect seeing six men hung once for stealing. The people around where our brigade was encamped in the Shenandoah valley had complained of heavy robberies by the soldiers, and an order was given making it a

DEATH PENALTY

To steal. When these six men were convicted our commander resolved that they should not suffer by the army rules, so a scaffold was erected, and instead of being shot they were swung betwixt heaven and earth by the neck."

"Were they confederate soldiers?"

"Yes, confederate soldiers, all of them; but they had violated a known order, and while they probably were guilty of theft from necessity, a true soldierly discipline was necessary to be enforced, and there was no such thing as extenuation. They all died without a murmur." When the captain had finished this the domes and steeples of Atlanta hove in sight and our conversation ended.

Hearing these blood curdling stories reminds me of a horrible death I once witnessed in Jackson, Tennessee, in 1877, I think. A negro named Nim Wilson, a great favorite around Jackson and a sort of outlaw, because of the favors which had been given him, shot a policeman one night, for which he was sentenced to hang. After a long trial before all the courts, the day came at last for

THE EXECUTION.

The murdered man was a brother to the sheriff, whose name was Perkins, and the latter seemed to take the most supreme delight in the task of avenging his brother. I suppose there must have been 5,000 people in town that day. The gallows was erected about half a mile from the town, down on the Forked Deer river, near the N. & C. railroad. I was not then in the newspaper profession, but having a turnout of my own, I was invited by Dr. Arnold, of the county physicians, to drive down, and through his courtesy I was given a position inside the square. Have I said the execution was public? Well, it was. People lined the railroad embankment until the place looked like an amphitheater, and all around for a hundred yards nothing but a sea of faces could be seen. When the prisoner arrived he mounted the gallows and made a speech, according to the usual custom, etc. I stood down on the ground with the doctors immediately under the gallows, and could look up into Wilson's face. When the rope was ready, the noose was adjusted and the prisoner took his position. He was light in statue and hence it would have taken a long fall to

BREAK HIS NECK.

This the sheriff did not give him, and much to the surprise of everpbody, only let about 18 inches of extra rope dangle. The trap was an ordinary door on hinges, which swung down when the trigger was pulled away. There was scarcely a thud when Perkins cut the rope to the trap, and Wilson hung in dreadful agony—and was conscious!

In the fall, his body swayed around to the scaffold which be grasped at convulsively and endeavored to climb up. Just then the crowd yelled, "Push him off! Push him off!" and he let loose and swung 'round on the opposite side, where he again tried to climb up. His arms were loosely pinioned, and he got up almost on his elbows, but his strength gave way and he dangled again. There was not enough swaying now for him to crawl up as before, and he could only clutch the rough floor of the scaffold, over which his nails scratched with a most horrible sound. Then, when he could no longer reach anything, he clawed the air with both hands a few moments and was then unconscious. I never want to see anything like it. He hung an hour and five minutes before dying, and a doctor told me he could have been resuscitated five minutes before he was cut down.

The negroes about town never deemed Wilson's death a just one, and hence out of him. His body lay in state in a room on the public square nearly two days, and and every possible means of showing respect and reverence for him was attempted. Sunday morning when the people went to church, they had to pass by this room. It was literally covered with flowers, and a beautiful casket held the remains. The darkies sang and shouted over the body and even went so far as to call him Christ. In the afternoon a long procession was formed and with a brass band marched through the principal streets of Jackson, bearing the "martyr" on a float or hearse. Through some means I never heard explained, Mayor Lawrence Talbot granted permission to bury him in the city cemetery, which was done with great pomp and splendor.

THEY MADE A MARTYR

I have seen two other negroes hung, but I think I have had enough. Being in a mood as horrible as the stories I have related, I have given them publicity just for the fun of the thing. Men will get blue sometimes, won't they? C. T. L.

The Black Bear's Call.

From the Marietta, Ga., Journal.

A large black bear passed through the southern suburbs of the city of Bainbridge, Wednesday evening, about dust. He stopped and took an inventory of Mr. J. F. Ingram's premises. No harm was done except to scare all the folks pretty badly, and he passed on in the direction of the river with an air of sheer indifference. This is the second time he has been seen in this vicinity.

THE GEORGIA SNAKE CROP.

From the Danielsville Monitor.

Look out for snakes.

From the Swainsboro Herald.

Rattlesnake season opened Sunday, and on the first day Wek and Elb killed a large one.

From the Hawkinsville News.

It was Joe Reynolds that killed that horned snake and not Joe Burrows, as reported.

From the Sandersville Herald.

A rattlesnake five feet long and having eleven rattles was killed by Mr. Henry Cook over Buffalo creek on Tuesday of last week.

From the Madison Madisonian.

A large rattlesnake was brought in town last Saturday by Mr. Houghton. It measured five feet in length and had eight rattles.

From the Crawfordville Democrat.

Captain Baxter killed a large rattlesnake on his place the other day—the seventh one that has been killed on his land this year.

From the Blackshear News.

A large rattlesnake was killed last week by some color d boys and dragged in town. A large one has been seen recently in the vicinity of the colored burying ground.

From the Newnan Herald.

Willie Smith killed a snake seven feet in length. Where hogs are not allowed to range snakes will abound and if they should grow to an enormous size and length it need not excite any astonishment.

From the Milledgeville Union-Recorder.

Mr. Jerome Tuttle killed a rattlesnake last Wednesday about six feet in length, with sixteen rattles. This is the fourth and largest he has killed this year The Supple plantation, cultivated by Mr. Tuttle, is a good place for ugly snakes. Look out where you put your foot, my boy.

From the Walton News and Vidette.

Little Willie Preston, of Good Hope, was bitten by a moccasin snake while grabbling for fish among the rocks in a stream The immediate application of the yolk of eggs and salt to the wound, and the administration of half pint of whisky, however, soon overcome the poison and he is now well.

From the Sylvania Telephone.

Snake stories are now in order, so we give the following: We are informed that Messrs R T Mills and E H Hill, a short time since, killed a rattlesnake five feet four inches in length and ten and a half inches around the neck. Its head was three inches broad at the eyes; fangs 1¼ inches in length, and it had sixteen rattles.

From the Dade County Gazette.

Pink Welsh killed a rattlesnake last Sunday that was over three feet long, and had eight rattles. Pink smiles, but oh! it is because the snake never bit him.

Willie, son of Dr. Taylor, killed an enormous snake one day lass week, with his hoe. The skin was hung out before the depot here, and measured nearly six feet.

From the Gainesville Eagle.

One day last week while Mr. John Champion was out about a mile from town, he found a rattlesnake, and running it into a hollow log, he placed a barrel over the end and ran the snake into the barrel. Having thus secured his snakeship, he brought it home and placed it in a glass case, in which, we b lieve, he has once before had one of the same kind. The snake is about six feet long, three inches in diameter, and has eleven rattles and a button. Mr. C. has it in the basement of his residence.

From the West Point Enterprise.

A friend of ours, three miles from town, recently witnessed a singular attack of a snake upon a wood rat. While walking in his farm he discovered two wood rats near the fence, and very quiet. He approached and pushed one with his cane, and as it jumped it was seized by a large snake that he had not seen.

Wednesday, at Reid's station, Mr. L. W. Laisbs shot and killed the largest snake that we have heard of this season. His snakeship was of the kind commonly called "water rattlesnake," a species of the moccasin, and measured five feet one inch in length and thirteen inches in circumference. The snake was cut open and inside was found a trout that was thirteen inches in length.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS.

The Secret

of the universal success of Brown's Iron Bitters is simply this: It is the best Iron preparation ever made; is compounded on thoroughly scientific, chemical and medicinal principles, and does just what is claimed for it—no more and no less.

By thorough and rapid assimilation with the blood, it reaches every part of the system, healing, purifying and strengthening. Commencing at the foundation it builds up and restores lost health—in no other way can lasting benefit be obtained.

79 Dearborn Ave., Chicago, Nov. 7.

I have been a great sufferer from a very weak stomach, heartburn, and dyspepsia in its worst form. Nearly everything I ate gave me distress, and I could eat but little. I have tried everything recommended, have taken the prescriptions of a dozen physicians, but got no relief until I took Brown's Iron Bitters. I feel none of the old troubles, and am a new man. I am getting much stronger, and feel first-rate. I am a railroad engineer, and now make my trips regularly. I can not say too much in praise of your wonderful medicine. D. C. MACK.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS does not contain whiskey or alcohol, and will not blacken the teeth, or cause headache and constipation. It will cure dyspepsia, indigestion, heartburn, sleeplessness, dizziness, nervous debility, weakness, &c.

Use only Brown's Iron Bitters made by Brown Chemical Co., Baltimore. Crossed red lines and trade-mark on wrapper.

Southern Sanitarium.

THE ABOVE MEDICAL INSTITUTION, FORmerly known as the Atlanta Health Institute or "Water Cure," is now complete and in daily operation despite attempted bulldozing incendiarism, perjury, forgery and inquisitorial sixteenth century fossilated, intolerant, hypocritical bigots to the contrary notwithstanding.

A Perfect Home for Invalid Ladies and Gentlemen.

All the luxurious and costly appointments, medical apparatuses and appliances introduced since the purchase of our present location and the erection of our new Medical Department, have justly earned for this Sanitarium the name of being one of the foremost and most elegantly fitted up institutions of its kind in the United States.

OVER TWO THOUSAND PERSONS have by our methods of treatment under our personal guidance been entirely restored to health without administering a single dose of either Mineral, Vegetable or Animal drug nostrums of any kind whatsoever; and in the future, as in the past, none but Normal and Physiological agents and means will ever be employed at this Sanitarium as aids in restoring the sick to health.

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.

FRIERSON & LEAK, AUCTIONEERS.

OUR RAMBLE—11 DWELLINGS AND 16 VACANT lots at auction. We will sell on the premises, to-morrow, July 10th, the desirable and valuable property described below. We will go out on wagons and Decatur street cars, starting from the Kimball house at precisely 4 o'clock. Ample accommodations and plenty of cold lemonade will be provided and all will have a pleasant time, as the conveyances will move from place to place and none need get out:

We will sell, 1st, No 17 North Collins st, a 4-room dwelling and 3 room close by in rear, on a splendid lot 55x200 feet. The buildings are old and plain, but can be used to good advantage for many years. They are now occupied by good tenants and will always rent well. Near the back door is a well of most excellent water, said to be as good as any in the city. The lot is large and beautiful, being elevated, perfectly level and on grade with the street. The neighborhood is now good and improving very fast, as many large and handsome dwellings and stores are now going up around and very near. Gas and water mains run immediately in front, and Decatur street cars run within a few steps, but the location is so central and convenient, with nice brick pavements and bright gas light, that horse cars are not needed. Lots so large, beautiful, central and desirable as this are very scarce and hard to get; therefore, all who went a nice, central home, or a desirable and valuable investment that will always pay well and surely enhance, should not fail to attend this sale and secure this choice location. Go by and look at the property—the lot especially. Titles perfect. Terms one-half cash; balance four months at 8 per cent.

We will sell, second house and lot, No. 21 N. Calhoun street, adjoining the above. This is a very desirable and valuable property. The house contains 8 rooms, halls, front and rear verandahs, closets, pantry, bath room and water closet, with nice bath tub and shower bath attachment, supplied with hydrant water and sewer pipes. There is a well of pure, cool, and excellent water at back door. The house is built of best material, neatly finished, conveniently constructed, and is in good condition. In fact, there is not a better framed house in the city. The framing is extra heavy heart pine, the weatherboarding and flooring carefully selected, and house is sound and substantial. The lot is 50x135 feet, and is a beauty, being elevated, on grade with the street, and level. Just in rear of the house is a very large and beautiful oak which shades the house, and a large portion of the backyard, thus rendering them cool and pleasant. The neighborhood is excellent and improving fast, as there are fully $20 000 worth of new and handsome buildings now going up near by. The location is very central, convenient and desirable for a home or investment as the house will always rent well to good tenants, pay good interest and increase in value all the while. It is difficult to secure property so central and desirable as this, as such places are seldom offered for sale; therefore, all who want a real nice, well located home, close in and convenient to business, should not lose this opportunity. Such nice property, so near the heart of the city, is obliged to become very valuable, therefore it is the safest and best property to buy whether for homes, speculation or permanent investment. Titles perfect; terms, one-third cash; balance 6 and 12 months at 8 per cent.

We will sell, 3d, about 5 o'clock, four 2 room houses on Cornelia street, a very short distance north of Decatur street, as per plats posted over the city. The houses are new and good and all occupied by good tenants. The lots are small but elevated, level, pleasantly and conveniently situated, well shaded and very desirable for nice quiet and pleasant homes, or small but profitable investments. The neighborhood is good, water splendid, location desirable and convenient, being but a short walk from street cars, near the Air-Line shops, new cotton factory and stores, where the houses will always be in demand, will rent steadily to good tenants, pay good interest and increase in value. This portion of the city is building up and improving so fast that one cannot make a mistake in buying this property, as it pays a very fine interest and is obliged to increase in value. Titles perfect. Terms will be announced at sale.

We will sell, 4th, about 5:30 o'clock, five 3-room cottages on the fine, shady eminence on the northwest corner of Decatur and Lane streets, near the Air-Line railroad crossing. The houses are now in good condition and well built, with plastered rooms and verandahs. The location is high, shady, pleasant and convenient and desirable for homes or investments, being on a main thoroughfare near the cotton factory and Air-Line shops and as desirable as any property in the vicinity for investment or homes. Railroad men and others having business in that portion of the city and wanting nice, convenient homes or good investments, can find no better property, and should be sure to attend this sale. Titles perfect. Terms will be announced at sale.

We will sell—5th, about 6 o'clock, seven very pretty vacant lots bounded, south, by Decatur street, west by Wallace street, and north by Foster street, as per plats posted over the city. These are very fine and desirable lots for suburban homes, renting houses, speculators, or investments. They are on and near Decatur street, the great thoroughfare leading east from the city, are just the right distance from the cotton factory and Air-Line shops for homes for the operatives, and are as pretty and pleasant as could be desired. Every lot is a gem, being elevated, perfectly level, overlooking a good portion of the city and in a quiet pleasant and desirable situation. Parties wanting nice suburban homes or lots to build renting houses on where they will rent well and where the property will increase in value, will do well to give these choice lots special attention. Titles perfect. Terms will be announced at sale.

We will sell, 6th, about 6:30 o'clock or immediately after, the above 8 nice lots on Randolph street, between Foster and Wheat streets. These are elevated, commanding and very desirable lots for suburban homes or renting houses. They are in the eastern district of the city, that is building up very fast, and in which property is increasing in value very fast; therefore it is safe to buy these nice lots, either for speculation or permanent investment. Titles perfect. Terms will be announced at sales. Remember the time and place of starting and be in good time, as we must leave at 4 o'clock sharp, and all who are not on time will be left. Frierson & Leak, Real Estate Agents, 33 Marietta street.

FRIERSON & LEAK, AUCTIONEERS

LUCKIE STREET PROPERTY AT AUCTION, on Tuesday, July 18th, 1882. We are instructed by the owner, who is a non-resident, to sell the two bran new and pretty five room cottages, Nos. 287 and 289 Luckie street, on beautiful shady lots 50x100 feet each. Also, the 2 vacant lots same size, immediately in rear of the above, fronting on Venable street. The houses are new, neat and very nice, having front and rear verandahs, halls, closets, pantries, etc., all nicely finished and very desirable for homes, being in a quiet, pleasant and convenient location and good neighborhood, only one block from Marietta street cars, but a few steps from Payne's chapel, near school, stores and the manufacturing district of the city. This property is not only desirable for homes, but valuable as investments, as the houses rent steadily to good tenants and pay a fine interest. Don't fail to examine property carefully and look out for plats giving full description, terms and hour of sale. Frierson & Leak, real estate agents, 33 Marietta st. 432

FRIERSON & LEAK, AUCTIONEERS.

ALEXANDER AND MILLS STREETS PROPERTY—We will sell on the premises Tuesday July 18, the new, neat, well-built nicely finished and very desirable cottage No 72 Alexander street, containing four nice rooms, hall, closets, pantry, front and rear verandahs, etc, on a fine, elevated and level lot, 72x190 feet, running through from Alexander to Mills street. The vacant lot fronting Mills street will be sold separately from or with the house and lot. Titles perfect. Terms ⅓ cash, remainder 6 and 12 months with 8 per cent. This is a very nice, convenient, pleasant and desirable home, in a good neighborhood and only two blocks from street cars. Examine it carefully and look out for plats. Frierson & Leak, Real Estate Agents, 33 Marietta street. 431

FRIERSON & LEAK, AUCTIONEERS.

BUTLER AND VALENTINE STREETS PROPerty at auction. We will sell on the premises Friday, July 14th, at six o'clock nice small but central houses and lots on Butler and Valentine streets, between Ellis and Calhoun streets, known as the Rich property. For permanent investments this property is very desirable, as it rents steadily to good prompt paying tenants and pays a large interest; while paying a large interest it will enhance; due notice of time and terms of sale will be given. Examine the property and look out for plats; our cards are on them. Frierson & Leak, Real Estate Agents, 33 Marietta street. 431

FRIERSON & LEAK, AUCTIONEERS.

MUNROE PROPERTY AT AUCTION MONDAY July 17th—We will resell the lots not taken by some parties who bid them in at former sale without our knowledge, and also a sufficient amount of adjacent property belonging to Crawford Munroe, to pay off all his debts. The Munroe property is on the north side of Pine street and west side of Blackman street, where said streets intersect, and is desirable property for cheap suburban homes or renting houses or speculation, as it has a good future and surely enhance, being only two blocks from Jackson street car line. Look out for plats and attend sale. The property will certainly be sold this time. Frierson & Leak, real estate agents, 33 Marietta street. 431

FRIERSON & LEAK, AUCTIONEERS.

JACKSON STREET PROPERTY AT AUCTION. Plats will be out in a few days giving plan of subdivision and full description of the valuable vacant and newly graded lots on northwest corner of Jackson and Old Wheat streets, fronting the Gate City street car line: we have had a great many inquiries for those fine lots and they are the most central and valuable vacant lots left on that new and popular street Parties interested will do well to give them special attention and look out for plats announcing time of sale. Frierson & Leak Real Estate Agents, 33 Marietta street. 431

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.

FRIERSON & LEAK, AUCTIONEERS.

ROSEDALE — 7 BEAUTIFUL SUBURBAN homes on Peachtree street at auction, Wednesday, July 12, 1882, at 3:30 p.m. This splendid suburban property, known as "Rosedale," just 3 miles on Peachtree street, embraces 90 acres, which we have divided into 7 large, beautiful and valuable tracts as shown by plat, each lot containing several acres. Lot No. 1 is highly improved with an elegant 9 room dwelling, servants' house, feed house, barn, stables, carriage house, cow houses, tenant's house, orchards, vineyards, three wells, and everything needed. The dwelling is large, modern in style, handsome in appearance, conveniently constructed, and contains every convenience such as wide halls, front rear and side verandas, plenty of closets, pantries, store rooms, meat and milk cellars, wine cellar, bath room and water closet, kitchen sinks, wash room sink, subterranean sewers and drain pipes, very large water tank, from which the house, bath room, closet and kitchen are supplied. There is is also a fine force pump in a well near the house with which well water can be pumped into the tank and house when necessary. There is a large, fine cook range in the kitchen, with a large water heater attached, from which hot water is supplied to the bath room and washstands. The capacity of the barns, feed houses and stables is sufficient for 30 head of stock. The orchards contain a fine variety of choicest fruits. The house stands on a beautiful eminence, with a lovely grass and flower lawn in front and a large yard around the sides and rear, all well shaded by stately forest oaks, giving the premises a picturesque, rustic, park-like appearance which is beautiful and attractive to the eye and exceedingly pleasant and desirable for a suburban home. Money has been unsparingly used to put on this place every thing necessary to make a home pleasant, convenient and comfortable, and it is, without any exception one of the best equipped, most complete and beautiful homes in the county. Lot No 2 is a perfect gem, a beautiful eminence, just the right distance from the road, well shaded by fine oak trees and sloping off beautifully in every direction from the summit, making a natural and lovely site for a dwelling, with a fine, shady lawn in front and ample grounds for garden, orchard, vineyard, stock yards, pasture, etc. Lot No. 3 is all in wood land, with a fair building site on the south end, all well shaded by fine forest trees, and would make a very pleasant and desirable home. On this lot are two fine springs running off through a nice, shady ravine with beautiful sloping bluffs, making a natural and lovely place for artificial lakes and a picturesque little suburban park, which could be made very attractive and beautiful with trifling cost. Lots 4, 5, 6 and 7 are very large and desirable for homes. Every lot has a fine building site on the front, with nice, level, open land in the rear for gardens, orchards, vineyards, stock lots, pastures and field crops, and abundance of fine, original timber for fire wood. The timber on the wood land will pay for the land, as it is heavy, will yield largely and is so near the city that it is very valuable. Nos 5 and 7 have each a fine spring and stream with nice places for lakes or fish ponds. Shoal Creek runs through lots 4, 5, 6 and 7, supplying pure spring water for stock. There is a valuable rock quary on No 6, and a good mill site on No 7. This beautiful property possesses rare advantages and is well worthy of careful examination by all who want first-class suburban homes. We have made the lots so large that purchasers can have all the advantages of a country farm—even fire wood. The land is good and can, by proper cultivation, be made profitable. The situation is all that could be desired, being only three miles from the center of the city by Peachtree street, only two and a half miles by West Peachtree street (which is being nicely worked out and graded), and only about one mile from the many elegant, new residences recently built on Peachtree street. The distance is only a pleasant drive of twenty minutes, over good roads, and will be but a short walk from horse cars, as the Peachtree line is to be extended. Don't fail to drive out and examine the property and attend the sale if you wish to secure a lovely suburban home, near and convenient to the city, and yet in the country, where one can enjoy a rare combination of city and country life. The property is very pretty and valuable, and no one can doubt that it has a fine future and will steadily and rapidly enhance in value as the city grows and hand some residences continue to go up and stretch out on Peachtree, as they will certainly do, until they reach out to these beautiful grounds and building sites, and thus render this fine property very valuable and desirable. The extension of the R & D R R through the property will also add much to its value and susceptibility, as it may become valuable a manufacturing sites on account of the railroad fronts. Titles absolutely perfect. Terms—One-half cash; balance 6, 12 and 18 months, at 8 per cent. Iced melons, lemonade and cigars will be served at the sale, and all who attend will have a cool, pleasant time in the shady grove. Ample conveyance for all will be provided, and we request all who can spare two or three hours from business to go out with us, whether they wish to buy or not. Comfortable spring wagons will start from the National Hotel promptly at half-past three o'clock. Don't forget to be on hand in good time, as we can not wait and will start at 3:30 o'clock sharp. Frierson & Leak, Real Estate Agents, 33 Marietta street. 431

FRIERSON & LEAK, AUCTIONEERS.

THE CRAWFORD HILL AT AUCTION—WE are preparing the grounds and plats for a grand sale of the beautiful and valuable suburban property on Pryor street and the ridge road, south and just outside of the city limits, known as the Crawford property, consisting of a splendid 35-acre tract of land embracing the beautiful "old apple orchard" on the water works road and the "old fort" between Pryor street and the ridge road, which is the highest point around Atlanta from which the entire city and surrounding country is overlooked. The new railroad runs through this property making it valuable for manufacturing, and it is exceedingly valuable for suburban homes. Plats giving full description of and valuable information concerning this fine property, will be ready in a few days. Sale will take place July 20th. THE CONSTITUTION,
Atlanta, Georgia.

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 9, 1882

THE signal service bureau report indicates for South Atlantic states to-day, cloudy weather, occasional light rains, light variable winds, mostly southerly stationary temperature and pressure.

BILL ARP has been sick but the genial humorist manages to make fun out of it in such a pleasant way that his sickness seems to have been like most men's good health—productive of good results

RIVERS AND HARBORS took up a good part of the time of the senate yesterday and very little was accomplished. No one seems to know much about the real needs of the Mississippi or to take much interest in the Hennepin canal, yet the grave senators waste lot of time over them.

ATLANTA has many curious industries. It will soon have one that is almost unique and one which will be a great addtiion to those which already exist. The useful broom will soon make its appearance as a steam-made Atlanta product. At present the Atlanta of the west is the only place in the world where they are made.

GEORGIA'S sweet potato crop is an important item in the total produce of the state. The transportation question affects the potato crop almost as much as it does the peach crop. It is therefore a gratifying sign of alertness and good will of the railroad companies when they offer good rates for farmers and merchants to ship their crop north.

SECRETARY FOLGER makes the best argument that he can for the falsity of the Doyle plates. Reduced to its lowest terms he says they are counterfeit because no one is so wealthy or so foolish as not to present some of the forged bonds, which matured long since, which never has been done. He also cites to testimony of experts. The fact is less stress is laid on the value of expert testimony these days than on lay witnesses. The secretary gives the arguments, but, taken altogether, the story that the forged bonds were printed in part from electrotypes of genuine plates is not fully disproved.

IT is now about a year since Atlanta was made a port of delivery, and still our merchants are compelled to pay duties on imports in cities long distances from home. This is because the railroads have not become bonded lines, and, therefore, cannot transport unappraised goods. Madison Davis held the office of surveyor for nearly a year, and when he left it the roads were still not bonded, and Pledger, his successor, has his hands tied because the roads have not acted in the matter. The situation is briefly presented in an interview with Pledger. The matter is one that calls loudly for action.

PARTY HARMONY.

It must be perfectly clear to those who have watched the canvass which has been going on in the state during the past several weeks that, to a handful of those who have made themselves conspicuous in opposing Mr. Stephens, party harmony and party unity are matters of small consideration. There has been a studious attempt on the part of this small and insignificant element to erect a barrier of bitterness between those who are willing to support Mr. Stephens and those who oppose his nomination. They have attempted to stir up all manner of strife, and they have failed. There was no bitterness in the primaries, no strife. Everything was in the direction of democratic harmony.

We allude to these things here and now for the purpose of suggesting that the time has arrived when further discussion of personal preferences between individual democrats may very properly be left to the convention. Everything that can be said in the newspapers will not operate to change the vote of a single delegate; its only effect, if it have any at all, will be to irritate and stir up strife.

In all that has been said in THE CONSTITUTION in favor of Mr. Stephens, we have never lost sight of the fact that the unity and harmony of the party are of more importance than the candidacy of any man. Our support of Mr. Stephens, as we have frequently taken occasion to say, has been entirely impersonal. He was not our first choice when the campaign opened; but when, in response to demands made upon him by THE CONSTITUTION, he crushed the coalition and pledged himself to lend his influence to destroy independentism in Georgia, his nomination at once became a necessary part of democratic policy. That the people have recognized it as such and have thus indorsed the position of THE CONSTITUTION is made manifest by the returns included in our table of counties. The nomination of Mr. Stephens is assured if the will of the people, as expressed in their primaries, is to be taken into consideration; but his nomination or his defeat is in the hands of the convention, and there the whole matter may be safely left.

The people have practically decided in favor of Mr. Stephens's candidacy, by instructing a large majority of their delegates in his favor, but even the suggestions growing out of this fact, or a denial thereof, may very properly be left to the convention. THE CONSTITUTION, in all political campaigns, is governed by two considerations. The first of these is that the state is never less prosperous, its people never less contented, than when a heated political campaign is going on. We have striven to ameliorate these results by temperate and common sense discussion.

The second consideration—the first in importance—is the harmony of the democratic party. We place this above everything When we say the harmony of the party, we mean the future as well as the present harmony of the organization. Now that the people have placed the matter in the hands of the convention, there is no longer any necessity for the useless and irritating discussion that has been a marked feature of the campaign. The future harmony of the party is quite as important as present unity, and this fact should be clearly borne in mind. It is desirable not only that the will of the great democratic majority should be carried out with respect to the nomination for governor, but that the party should be represented in congress by a solid delegation. This result cannot be brought about save through party harmony and unity.

MR. STEPHENS AND THE VOTE.

Four days ago we published conspicuously a request in our columns that if any delegate to the coming convention saw that his county was misquoted, he would notify us of the error and have it corrected. This request has been repeated daily with the table, but not one correction has yet been suggested.

It is cheap and easy for outsiders interested in hiding the real result, to attack the incorrectness of our figures. We are used to that sort of thing. It has been tried in many a campaign, but we have always stood by our figures, and the record has shown that they were surprisingly accurate and liberal. We appeal to the first ballot of the coming convention to justify the correctness of the table we print this morning.

Ten days ago we predicted that Mr. Stephens would have 206 votes in the convention, and probably more. He now has 208½ votes, by our estimates. Of the ten counties yet to act he will get on a fair estimate six votes or three counties. Add these to his present strength and he will have about 215 votes. Will he get 234 votes, which makes a full two-thirds? We cannot say, but it is our opinion that he will. Of the counties put in the "uninstructed" column, he has a chance at several counties that may prefer him if local favorites are not in the field, such as Putnam and others, if Mr. Blount will not permit the use of his name, or Muscogee and others, if Judge Crawford will not consent. He has a chance at others that seem to have no particular preference, and from whom no sort of expression has been obtained, such as Clinch, Pierce and others. He will have a chance also at certain counties that do not prefer him, and would rather take another man, but will vote for him in preference to Bacon. There are still others, who, really against Mr. Stephens, in preference will yield to the manifest will of the majority. From all these sources we have little doubt that he will secure the few votes needed to give him two-thirds of the delegates.

As to the rule we confess we can see no reason to doubt that the majority rule will certainly be adopted. There have been instructed for it or have openly pronounced for it as far as heard from nearly twice as many as were instructed for the two-thirds rule. Of the uninstructed delegates we presume the majority rule will certainly get its proportion. For example, the six votes of Fulton while not instructed, will be cast solid for the majority rule. We are perfectly indifferent as to which rule is adopted. We are willing to risk Mr. Stephens's nomination under either. But the people have the right to settle it, and the people have spoken unmistakably as far as they have spoken at all in favor of the majority rule.

THE NILE WAR-CLOUD.

The public are not allowed to know the nature of the business transacted at the sittings of the conference of the six powers held in Constantinople. It is believed, however, that they agreed in requesting the porte to restore order in Egypt—that is, to crush out Arabi Bey and his supporters. It is also believed that the sultan, with the fear of an Arabian caliphate before his eyes, refused to accede to this request. It is also believed that France has practically abandoned Tewfik, although she had agreed to stand by him, although she built the Suez canal and although she is an indorser of the Egyptian loans. It is further believed that England, with the tacit consent of the other powers, intends, single-handed, if need be, to crush Arabi Bey. She may receive naval assistance from France or Italy or little Greece, but whether she does or not, it is plain that she proposes to "restore order" in Egypt. An army corps will be dispatched from England and as large a force as can be spared from India, and every available vessel of war will be ordered to the scene of action at once. The preparations that England is making seem out of proportion to the task in hand; but it must be remembered that Moslem fanaticism lends a new strength to the forces of Arabi Bey. Mr. Gladstone is no lover of Turkey, and he certainly has no love for eastern complications. If he strikes at all—and such a result seems inevitable—the blow will contain all the force that England can speedily muster.

Two questions then arise. Will Arabi Bey yield? He is undoubtedly a man of great force of character. From the gutter he has risen in a short time to the dictatorship. His success has doubtless led him to think he can free his country of foreign domination. His popularity is undoubtedly great, and his appeals to Egyptian patriotism and to the fanaticism of his co-religionists are always effective. The very issue he makes renders war a necessity. He says the foreigners and foreign rule must go. This means that the holders of Egyptian bonds must take what the people of Egypt are willing to grant them after an expensive war, and it also means that the Suez canal shall in the main be controlled from Cairo instead of from London and Paris. There is no room for compromise over the proposition, "Egypt for the Egyptians." Arabi Bey is pledged to this proposition, and his power will depart if he departs from it The belief is that he will not, and that he will fight in Egypt as long as he can, and when he can no longer maintain his ground in his own country he will retreat southward, appealing at every step to the Moslems and to all who hate the people of the western nations.

The other question relates to the policy of England after victory. She has undoubtedly given some pledges that she will not attempt to gain a foothold in Egypt; she will go at first in the interests of peace, honesty and order; but when she has come into full possession of the soil over which her road to India lies—the land route being now under the control of Russia—will she be apt to surrender the fruits of her victory simply on assurances that peace and order shall be maintained? No, indeed. Such a course would be the reverse of almost the entire history of her conquests. And she never conquered territory in which she had so great a stake as she has in Egypt. Mr. Gladstone is making a great effort, and we may be sure that he is about to strike a blow that will change the entire face of the eastern question.

THE NATIONAL BALANCE SHEET.

The fiscal year was ended with the month of June, and an official statement of receipts and expenditures has already been published. We give, first, a table of the receipts:

	1882.	1881.
Customs	$219,678,523	$198,159,6765
Internal revenue	146,148,286	135,264,38
Miscellaneous	37,635,138	27,358,231
Total	$403,461,897	$306,782,292

The expenditures of the fiscal years, as compared with those of the previous year, were as follows:

	1882.	1881
Net ordinary	$187,630,000	$178,204,146
Interest on debt	71,256,000	32,500,741
Total	$258,886,000	$260,712,887

This is the story in brief of heavy taxation and lavish expenditure. The indications are that the customs receipts will show no such rate of gain this year as they did last year. The last quarter of the past year shows a gain of only $2,400,000, whereas in the previous quarter there was a gain of nearly ten millions. If this year's collections in the custom houses equals those of the past year, the government should be satisfied. There are some, however, who think the custom receipts will this year run up to $230,000,000. Last year's collections were unexampled, the nearest approach being those of 1872, when something over $216,000,000 was collected. The receipts from internal revenue will depend, of course, upon pending legislation; but the chances are that the entire receipts of the current year will not vary much from those for the year just ended.

This should give a surplus of $150,000,000, but it will not because congress has scattered, or will scatter, money lavishly. Forty millions are to go on account of arrears of pensions, and about fifteen millions to rivers and harbors, not to mention a liberal schedule of general expenses. To offset these extravagances there will be a saving in the interest charge. The interest charge, as it stood on the first of this month, was $57,360,000 a year, or $14,000,000 less than it was one year ago. To this sum will be added $1,750,000 by the redemption of 3½ per cents, and possibly $3,000,000 more by the conversion of $200,000,000 of 3½ per cents into 2 per cents. Such a saving will not offset the extravagance of congress, and the country will be lucky if the next annual balance sheet shows a reduction in the bonded debt of $100,000,000. The present heavy rate of taxation should yield a surplus of $150,000,000 to apply to the reduction of the debt, but pension grabs, and local grabs, and grabs all along the line will cut this sum down one-third.

CZARS and their generals may pass away, but the true Jeffersonian democracy of Georgia still survives.

As a "time-honored" affair, the two-thirds rule seems to have a very shaky history in state conventions.

As the Wells comet failed to come in sight, we judge it was a part of the opposition to Mr. Stephens.

JUDGE HILTON has gone to Saratoga, while the Stewart estate has gone to smash. Really, things keep even.

THE old pumps of the tariff commission are already hovering uneasily around the treasury department with their pockets open.

THE republicans are not mad with Robeson because he robbed the government, but because he was fool enough to be found out.

THE Boston Post says the khedive's wife and mother fight. They are evidently from Massachusetts or Connecticut, and know their rights.

THE doctors are quarreling over Guiteau's remains. There is nothing in this wide world, nor the bowels thereof, that doctors won't quarrel over.

Now that Whitthorne, of Tennessee, has fixed falsehood and perjury on Robeson, the republicans owe it to the latter to nominate him for president. He should be vindicated.

THE republican reformers are still pouring their plaints into the ears of the magazine editors. Meantime the machine is sweeping up all the stray nickels in the departments.

PEOPLE who are scratching and grabbling for the almighty dollar ought to bear in mind that Stewart's heirs and assigns didn't have enough money to buy back his bones. This is a good item for Sunday.

IT is a little singular that the anti-Stephens papers should fail to perceive that it is much more important to THE CONSTITUTION to print the returns accurately than to secure the nomination of Mr. Stephens.

IT is reported of Editor John Conley that he has been using some very vigorous and graphic language descriptive of those who make up the republican howlers in Atlanta. It may be said of Editor John that he can tell what's what as far as he can see it.

A NUMBER of our esteemed exchanges kicked against THE CONSTITUTION'S election tables after the Colquitt-Norwood primaries. Those tables, however, stand the wear and ear of time. The tables prepared by THE CONSTITUTION may not be groaning under the choicest viands of the season, but they are correct.

WITH respect to the memorial pamphlet of the late Colonel James D. Waddell, we learn that one thousand copies were printed for gratuitous distribution among the personal friends of Colonel Waddell. This was done at the suggestion of Mr. Stephens, who, with his accustomed generosity, assumed the payment of nearly all the cost of the publication. We presume that there are still a few copies left, but information on the subject may be obtained from Mr. John O. Waddell, Cedartown.

PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE.

FIFTEEN thousand people visited Garfield's toomb on the anniversary of his assassination.

GENERAL ROSENCRANS is badly crippled with rheumatism at present, and has to use crutches to get to the capitol.

ELEVEN veterans of 1812 gathered at New York, ranging from 84 to 87 years of age. Thurlow Weed, 84, was led in, his eye sight having failed greatly of late.

IT seems very doubtful after all if Salvina comes to this country this fall. M. Chizzola is still partnerless and he has no money of his own. Salvina will not come over unless his money is sure and therefore no dates have been surely booked for him as yet.

A SPECIAL dispatch from Oconomowoc, Wisconsin, to the Chicago Tribune, says that Bishop Beckwith, of Atlanta, and E F Watkins, of Chicago, brought in on Thursday last a string that numbered sixty-three bass, weighing from two to five pounds each, and a dozen or more pickerel of various sizes. The aggregate weight of the catch was something over 200 pounds.

MARY ANDERSON lives a very secluded life at Long Branch. Most of her time is passed in playing with her little stepsister and brothers on the lawn of her pretty place. She rides on horseback a great deal, and sails considerably on the Shrewsbury river. She is never seen at any of the hotels, and goes very little into society.

GOVERNOR CORNELL, of New York has vetoed a considerable number of bills passed by the legislature. An immense mass of special legislations, wrapped up in 117 separate bills, also fails to become law for lack of the governor's approval. Some of these bills are ludicrously trivial, as, for instance one to change the name of the Reformed Low Durch church of Laghanie and another to improve the pond in the public square of an obscure village.

MRS. KATE CHASE SPRAGUE, who is spending a portion of the summer at her old home, Edgewood, with her daughters, counts among her treasures her father's family Bible. It contains the entry of her birth. August 16, 1840, with the remarks, in Mr Chase's handwriting: "The babe is pronounced pretty. I think it quite otherwise. It is, however, well formed, and I am thankful May God give the child a good understanding, that she may keep His commandments."

ADMIRAL PORTER'S office at his $60,000 house in Washington is quite a nautical curiosity shop. There are some old pieces of furniture, a few books in cases, a number of drawings and photographs on the walls. In one corner are half a hundred models of torpedoes, with very harmless tin tubes and pine stems. On a stand on one side of the room is a working model of the steamer Alarm. Little brass guns and bits of ships, papers and documents and books scattered over three desks, a case of stuffed birds and countless things of interest catch the eye.

CURRENT COMMENT.

A Hint to the Malley Boys.
Cincinnati Enquirer.

What newspapers will the Malley boys sue for libel? We suggest that they pool their issues with Mr. Dorsey, who proposes to sue about all the newspapers in the country.

Getting Lonesome and Discouraged'
Savannah Times.

Well, we think we shall give up journalism, for two long days has gone by and not a single soul with but a single thought has advised us how to run our paper. Such negligence on the part of spasmodic advisers is truly unpardonable.

Who Reads the Paper.
Greensboro Herald.

More people read THE ATLANTA DAILY CONSTITUTION every day than any two papers in the south. This is an extravagant expression, perhaps, but we believe it true. We see it in the hands of everybody, old and young, white and black. They read it whether they indorse it or not, whether they are friends or foes. This is certainly a high compliment to pluck and enterprise, which THE CONSTITUTION shows.

The People Have Spoken.
Columbus Times.

It is difficult to see how any man who has or can obtain access to reliable information can any longer doubt the fact that the people of the state, in their county mass meetings on Tuesday last, gave emphatic utterance to their will that Mr. Stephens shall be their next governor, and that on no future occasion shall the two-thirds rule obstruct the nomination of their choice for the honors of their offices Yet some are so blind as not to see, or so stupid as to ignore the facts which convince all others.

Now for Reunion.
Rome Courier.

The canvass for the democratic gubernatorial nomination has been exceedingly bitter. The journals opposed to Mr. Stephens have been unsparing and intolerant in their antagonism, and some of Mr. Stephens's supporters have responded with nearly equal acrimony, but it has been in a defensive way. We are glad to say that the democratic record of no other aspirant has been assailed, nor have any harsh things been said against them. We, on our side, are free to support any democrat who has been named, or may be named in this connection, without any regrets or hesitation resulting from prior opposition. While we are still as strongly for Mr. Stephens as ever, and believe that the popular preference for him has now been expressed so plainly that his friends are bound to do all in their power to make him the candidate, we could have supported Major Bacon with much more cordiality if he, instead of Mr. Stephens, had received the popular indorsement. Indeed we believe that there are few men in the state so thoroughly cognizant of its condition and of the measures needed to promote its welfare as Major Bacon. Nor do we think that there is one who would more honestly or vigilantly apply himself to the advancement of the interests and honor of Georgia. We preferred Mr Stephens simply because we thought it eminently fit that one who had so long and so creditably illustrated the state—who had most honorably served the people in other positions for near half a century—should be allowed, if he aspired to it, to close his public career with a term as the chief executive of his state, the highest position within its gift. We believed, too, and we still believe, that his nomination will do more than that of any other man to demoralize and paralyze opposition to the democratic party, and to repress schisms that threatened its integrity. We looked not alone to the nomination of Mr. Stephens as a personal object, but to its effect in strengthening the democratic party throughout the state.

The canvass for the nomination is now over, and we hope that those who have been engaged in it, on both sides, will cease their bickerings, divest themselves of the prejudices which have been created, and prepare to give the common enemy such an overthrow as will make them rue the day that they allied themselves with a corrupt and corrupting administration at Washington to control the politics of Georgia.

HON. THOS. HARDEMAN

Writes a Letter Defining His Position in the Politics Situation.

MACON, July 8, 1882—Hon John L Woodard, Dooly; Mr William Bronson, Houston; Mr J M White, Laurens—Gentlemen: Having received your letters, with others of a similar nature, asking me what course I intend to pursue in reference to congressman-at-large, I feel it due to answer you plainly and unreservedly. I reply to you as I have to every one who has written me—I shall not seek the position. I cannot enter into a personal contest for it, yet I would not decline the honor should the convention tender it to me. I do not desire any strife over my name. I prefer peace and harmony, and would subordinate personal aspirations and ambition to the unity and success of the democratic party. I have been prompted also to this course, because I have personal friends who aspire to the position, any one of whom would do honor to it and the state. I do not desire to antagonize them, perhaps at the expense of harmony and good feeling. This is no time for dissension and strife. Important elections are upon us, and nothing should be done to endanger our success.

The party has not entirely recovered from the bitterness of the last campaign. I do not wish to become a "bone of contention" again Some years ago I aspired to position. I saw the majority of the people were against me, yet it was urged, under the required two-thirds vote, the will of that majority could be thwarted. I declined to be a party to such a contest, and determined that as far as it was in my power the will of the people should be carried out. Two years ago, in our state convention, we had strife, which, owing to passionate and imprudent speeches, solidified parties and resulted in serious division in our ranks. It is known to many I did all in my power to maintain harmony then, and prevented from following the dictates of my own judgment, I urged those personal friends to whom I could appeal, to abandon me and make a nomination and save the party. Some yielded to my request, indorsed as it was by their own sense of propriety, and had all in that convention been prompted by similar motives, we would have been spared a contest in Georgia which reflected no credit upon the democratic party. I desire no such struggle again over my name, and for that reason I say I do not desire to enter into a contest for the position. If the party wish to confer upon me the honor of congressman-at-large, they will of their "own accord" give it to me, and I will accept it. If they prefer to confer it upon another, I will without a murmur do as I did in the dark days of Georgia when we were struggling to rescue the state from republican rule and reconstruction oppression fall into the ranks, and as a private citizen go with the foremost into every congressional district in Georgia, following the banner and fighting as valiantly as I may be able the battles of a harmonious and united democratic party. I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

THOMAS HARDEMAN.

THE ARTLESS PRATTLE OF A BABE.

From the Detroit Free Press.

One of those unnaturally bright children who are always getting people into difficulties was at a prayer meeting the other evening with his mother, when he asked aloud:

"Ma, say ma—who was Dinah Moore?"

"Hu-u-sh," whispered his mother cautiously, "it's a hymn."

"No, it ain't, ma," continued the hopeful; "it's a woman's name; "say, who's going home to Dinah Moore?"

"Willie," said his mother, in a ghastly voice, "you're disturbing the meeting. It means going to heaven to die no more."

"Dine no more! O, ma, don't they eat anything there?"

His mother explained as well as she could, and Willie sat still for half a minute, his bright eyes roving about the church. Then he asked in a shrill whisper:

"Ma, is God out of town?"

"No-o-o, no-no," answered the distracted woman, faintly.

"Then what's Mr. Kelly running this meeting for, ma?" continued the sweet child.

The choir sung him down, but as the meeting closed with a moment of silent prayer, his gentle voice was distinctly heard.

THE question whether dogs have souls, as Goethe, Byron, Sir Walter Scott, Guiteau, Eli Perkins and other distinguished men seem to think, can never be decided in this world, but their intelligence and sagacity are undisputed. Box Ingersoll once owned a dog of which he was both proud and fond. One day while he was entertaining some friends at the dinner table the animal, which had the free range of the house, walked into the room and at once became the topic of conversation. The colonel broke out into a glowing and eloquent account of his many noble qualities. When he had finished one of the guests asked him what he thought the creature's two most notable virtues were.

"Shrewdness and amiability," responded the colonel.

"Can you give us an illustration?" continued the guest.

"With pleasure," was the answer. "Carlo never growls except when the minister calls."

BLAINE AND HANCOCK

Are the Two Names Jerry Black Thinks Will be Rallied to in Two Years.

CHICAGO, July 8.—"Want to interview me on national polities? Why, I haven't had my breakfast yet," and Hon Jerry S Black, of York, Pennsylvania, the distinguished jurist and politician, smiled suggestively. "How can I talk about such ponderous subjects on an empty stomach?" "Will the democrats, as a party, nominate a president?" "Certainly." "Who will it be?" "Why, Hancock, of course. I don't see who else could be named." "And the republican candidate will be Blaine," interrupted Mr. Black, readjusting his eye glasses and gazing anxiously in the direction of the Grand Pacific dining room. "I think it will be Blaine. Things begin to point that way, but you can't tell what the republican party will do." "What part will free trade play in the next presidential campaign?" "What part, did you say? A very large part; free trade, or rather fair trade, is a matter of much concern to the people at large. It must hold a prominent position in national politics"

JUDGE BLACK'S LARGE SYMPATHY.

"You are an advocate of the anti-monopoly theory, are you not?" "Call it by the name that suits you best, I am in favor of relieving the people of the burdens in the way of taxations. They are taxed too much, and I only wish they might not be taxed at all. Political parties cannot dodge this question of taxation, and it must be grasped at one end or the other." "Will the question of prohibition find a place in the next presidential campaign?" "Oh, pshaw!" exclaimed Mr Black, a shade of annoyance chasing over his grand old face, "I can't be interrogated as to such things. You newspaper people know full well the standing and prospects of prohibition as a national political question of reform, and can judge of it as well as I." "And civil service reform—is there any?" And the next governor of Pennsylvania will be "Mr. Pattison, of Philadelphia;" and Mr. Ingersol's great foe calmly closed his eye glasses, gave his morning paper another fold and strode away toward breakfast. Mr. Black is in splendid health and spirits. He is in Chicago to attend to business in the United States courts, and will remain but a few days.

An Enjoining Order.

RICHMOND, July 8.—Judge Wellford, of the Richmond circuit court, to-day rendered a decision in the case of Gantt vs. the State of Virginia, in which the plaintiff prays for an injunction to restrain the alleged misappropriation of the proceeds ($500,000) of the sale of the state's interest in the Atlantic, Mississippi and Ohio railroad, $100,000 of which money by act of the last legislature was appropriated for the establishment of a colored normal school, the remainder to be used in refunding to the public free schools a portion of the money heretofore diverted therefrom. The decision was in favor of the complainant and against the state enjoining, and restraining any state officer from in any manner using or interfering with said money or any part thereof The court also ordered the state treasurer to take possession of said money and pay it over to the commissioners of the sinking fund to be applied by them as provided for in the act of March, 1871, known as the funding act for the settlement of the state debt. The case will be taken to the supreme court of appeals.

The Striking Freight Handlers.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Some of the Italian freight handlers were attacked early this morning in the battery park, but they succeeded in worsting their assailants. The New York Central and Hudson river pier at Barclay street is crowded with accumulated freight. Very little is being received and much less handled. The Erie piers were receiving no freight at all. At the upper piers of the Pennsylvania railroad little freight was received, but as fast as possible it was loaded on floats to be taken away. At St. John's park depot no change was apparent. One train left this morning, and another one was being loaded. The prospect of a settlement is as yet in the remote future.

A Border Battle.

CHICAGO, July 8.—A special dispatch from Predros Negras, Mexico, says: "Last evening news was received here of a battle between eighteen contrabands and forty soldiers acting under orders of the custom house. The contrabands were overtaken by the troops ten leagues from here, while in camp. Half the troops attacked them mounted, and the others opened on them from a ravine. The contrabands fought desperately, losing two men. Of the customs party one was killed. Nine smugglers, upwards of forty bales of goods, a number of guns and forty horses, were captured.

The Cause of Skobeleff's Death.

LONDON, July 8.—Skobeleff's heart complaint, it is thought was due to a contusion received during the attack on Plevna. His end was without warning. Only a week or two ago the general rode two versts in a little over one night. He spent the greater part of Thursday at the Moscow exhibition, and returned to his hotel in excellent spirits. There were at first reports of foul play, but a cursory examination showed that death was caused by a rupture of the vessels of the heart.

More Bodies Found.

CINCINNATI, July 8. A special dispatch to the Times-Star from Steubensville, Ohio, states that eighteen additional bodies of victims of the Scioto disaster were reported found at noon to-day. Among those identified are Louis Harper, John Stevenson, Lotta Smith and C B Armstrong, all of Wellsville, Ben Stebbing and Manis Dannaker, of Liverpool, Jonathan Hart, of Cleveland, Flora Pulp, of Somerset, and John D Cummings, of Salineville, The others have not been identified.

An American Victory.

LONDON, July 8.—At the Marlow regatta to day, at Marlow, on the river Thames, the Hillsdale crew from the United States, beat the Marlow crew by a clear length. The Cookham crew, which was also entered for the same race, was scratched. The Marlow crew had the center station, and the Hillsdale the buckside of the river.

Fears of an Indian Outbreak.

DURANGO, Col., July 8.—Savarro, one of the Indian police, killed a western Indian yesterday at the southern Ute agency. Izracio, chief of the southern Utes, fears the friends of the dead man will retaliate on the white settlers. Indian Agent Patton has notified the commander at Fort Lemis to warn the settlers of the danger.

Felt in the Boston Market.

BOSTON, July 8.—The effect of the Egyptian muddle is distinctly felt in the markets for the East India merchandise. The fear that the Suez canal may be damaged, has imparted a firmer feeling in shellac, cutch, etc., while gum arabic, which is an Egyptian product, has advanced from 6 to 8 cents per pound.

A Dutch Vessel Lost.

Special Dispatch to The Constitution.

AMSTERDAM, July 8.—It is feared that the Dutch iron-clad, Adder, has been lost, as the body of her pilot was washed ashore at Ymuiden. The Adder is a second-class vessel, with 400 horse power engines, and a displacement of 1,600 tons.

A Supposed Duke's Son Killed.

DES MOINES, Iowa, July 8.—Herman Blackman, of Bloomfield, died last night from wounds inflicted by a farmer named Crane, on Tuesday night, during a drunken quarrel. Blackman's father is said to have been a duke of the grand dukedom of Saxony. Crane is under arrest. Both families are eminently respectable.

After Advertising.

ST. LOUIS, July 8.—Captain Payne, of Oklohoma notoriety, reports that he will start for Indian Territory July 20, with the largest band of colonists that has yet gone into the Territory. He says he does not think Secretary Teller will interfere with this movement.

Socialists Arrested.

Special Dispatch to the Constitution.

PRAGUE, July 8.—Thirteen socialists have been sentenced to prison here for terms ranging from two years to one week.

OUR CUSTOM HOUSE.

A Short Talk With Collector Pledger on the Situation of Things.

Yesterday THE CONSTITUTION asked Collector Pledger what the situation was in reference to the bonding of the lines to Atlanta He replied:

"I have received a letter from W. H. Clements, master of transportation of the Baltimore and Ohio road, who says that he has instructed his agents to load Atlanta freight in Baltimore and Ohio cars. Mr. J. W. Garrett, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, says that the Baltimore and Ohio will be glad to oblige Atlanta, and will do all in its power to help the situation. It will allow its bonded cars to pass over the Richmond and Danville road to Atlanta if the Air-Line will agree to hold that road harmless Mr. Garrett says, however, that the law of the United States requires each separate road to give bond."

"What do you think of that?"

"The law of the United States does not require that each separate road shall be bonded, but when a road is bonded, it can give permission to connecting lines to carry their bonded cars. It only remains, since the Baltimore and Ohio is under bond for a half million dollars to carry unappraised goods, for the Richmond and Danville to make a small bond to secure the Baltimore and Ohio and none, unless the Baltimore and Ohio requires it, for the loss or damage that might be sustained I am sure that in less than two weeks, the way will be clear for freights from New York and Baltimore to Atlanta."

'Are there any other lines?"

"I have a letter from the superintendent of the Central railroad in which he says the matter of bonding his line from Sanannah to Atlanta is dow in progress, and if we do not get the Richmond and Danville it is likely that we will have a line from Savandah."

"Talk to me some about politics."

"With reference to the course the republicans will take in the forthcoming state campaign I may say that they will be altogether governed by the action of the democratic state convention As to the republican party being pleged to General Gartrell that is a mistake. It is pledged to no man but will act in accord with such minority as may see fit to support a candidate other than the regularly organized nominee."

THE HORSEWHIP.

Dr. Gardner Suffers the Lash to Be Plied by Mr George Hoppie.

For some reason or reasons, which are yet to be made public, there has for some time past been an unfriendly feeling between Dr. G. W. Gardner and Mr. George Hoppie, which yesterday ended in the former being severely horsewhipped by the latter.

It appears that the trouble has been brewing for the past two months, and that yesterday about noon Dr. Gardner entered Mr. Hoppie's place of business, on Peachtree street, where the two had a short conversation, in which Dr. Gardner stated that he wanted to tell Mr. Hoppie that he had never given utterance to some remarks about him which he had reasons to believe would be repeated to him. Mr. Hoppie replied to the statement by telling Dr. Gardner that he was

TRYING TO LEVY BLACKMAIL

And ordered him to leave the store. The doctor complied, but his motions were so slow that Mr. Hoppie grabbed a buggy whip and began laying it upon Dr. Gardner's shoulders with great force. This gave the doctor the necessary speed and he started down Peachtree street as fast as his legs could carry him. Close behind came Mr. Hoppie, still plying the whip, every stroke of which forced the doctor to cry murder! at the top of his voice.

Subsequent to the whipping Dr. Gardner obtained a warrant charging Mr. Hoppie with assault and battery, and upon this he was arrested, but gave bond for his appearance to-morrow morning before Judge Tanner. The real causel of the difficulty are yet quiet, but it is generally conceded that it is a family matter.

About eleven o'clock last night the mean whisky drank by Tom Furlow and Harry Turley, two colored citizens of the fourth ward, caused a mutual disagreement, which ended in a bad knife wound in Turley's left breast and another on his right cheek, and an ugly gash on Furlow's forehead.

Jack Simpson was taken in about twelve o'clock, upon a charge of robbing. The complainant is Ed Palmer who alleges that Jack robbed him of his watch and ten dollars. The watch, but not the money, was recovered.

A New York Suspension.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Gould H. Thorpe, whose suspension was announced on produce exchange yesterday, was compelled to suspend through the speculative doings of his book-keeper. His liabilities are $25,000.

Yankee Codfish.

BOSTON, July 8.—The fish receipts at Gloucester, Mass., for the first six months of 1882 show a large increase in the mackerel catch over the corresponding terms of the previous three years, while codfish and halibut show a falling off.

A QUESTION.

O sea! almighty sea!
What is it troubles thee
From east to west
Forever, to and fro,
Thy baffled billows go,
And find no rest;

Now, dashing at the bars
That shut them from the stars,
They roar and beat,
Now, with a moaning cry,
They sink, dissolve and die,
Here at my feet.

Image of deity!
O world-encircling sea,
Whose scepter holds
From God direct its power!
Kin, in thy glory's dower,
To human souls.

Tell me, hast thou like these
Bewildering mysteries?
Weird moods, that swell
With splendor crowned to heaven,
Or sink, accursed, unshriven,
Headlong to hell?

—Charles W. Hubner.

FINANCIAL FACTS.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Share speculation opened strong with an advance in prices of ⅛ to 2 per cent from closing quotations of yesterday, Cincinnati. Sandusky and Cleveland, Oregon Navigation and Nashville and Chattanooga being most prominent On the advance in early kealings there was a small fractional decline in some shares after which the market sold up ¼ to 1¼ per cent, Denver and Rio Grande, Louisville and Nashville, Rochester and Pittsburg and St. Paul being conspicuous in the upward movement. About noon this was followed by a reaction of ⅛ to ⅜ per cent. Louisville and Nashville leading therein, but the market subsequently became bouyant and recorded an advance ranging from ⅛ to 2 per cent, in which Oregon Navigation, Louisville and Nashville, Rochester and Pittsburg and Reading were prominent. There was then a decline of ⅛ to 1 per cent, the latter Richmond and Danville, but the market again became buoyant, and in the late trade sold up ⅛ to 2⅛ per cent, Louisville and Nashville and Alton and Terre Haute leading the advance. In the final trade the general list sold off ⅛ to ⅞ per cent, the latter Reading, and the market closed generally weak, but ¼ to 4¾ per cent above the closing figures of yesterday, Louisville and Nashville, Oregon Navigation, Nashville and Chattanooga and Illinois Central leading in the day's advance. The transactions aggregated 395,000 shares.

IN THE THIRD HUNDRED.

HOW FULTON BORE HERSELF IN YESTERDAY'S FIGHT.

The Last Conflicts of the Week Close in Triumphs for Mr. Stephens, Whose Vote Now Runs Up to 208 1-2—The Vote on the Rules and the Reports from Congressional Field.

The returns from the primaries are almost entirely in. Only ten counties, casting twenty votes, remain to be heard from. Of these perhaps six have already acted. Two, Fulton and Lumpkin, acted on yesterday, Mr. Stephens carrying both.

In our tables, published below, there is some doubt in three or four counties as to how many votes they will cast. It is yet a matter of doubt whether the old legislature apportionment or the new will be the basis of representation in the convention. Until this is settled it is uncertain whether Dougherty casts 2 or 4 votes, Houston 6 or 4, Macon 2 or 4, Walton, Hall and Putnam 2 or 4. The settlement of this question may change our estimate three or four votes—not more.

The results to date are: Delegates instructed or openly pronounced in favor of Mr. Stephens, 208½; delegates instructed or pronounced for Mr. Bacon, 81½; views unknown, 44. On the rules the vote stands: Instructed to vote for the majority rule, 128; instructed for the two-thirds rule, 78; under no instructions, 36. On the vote for congressman-at-large the vote shows the vote to be for Hall 43, Hardeman 35, Barnes 28, Carlton 20, Young 16, McIntyre 8, Dabney 6, Nichols 4, Wootten 2, Glenn 2, Brown 2 and W A Harris 2. The counties yet to be heard from are Baldwin, Camden, Charlton, Chattahoochee, Echols, Effingham, Emanuel, Henry, Liberty, Rabun and Tatnall.

With these remarks we submit the tables as amended by yesterday's information—renewing our request that any delegate who sees his own vote or that of his county reported in the wrong column will promptly notify us over his own name, when we will make the correction.

DAWSON'S DELEGATES.

GAINESVILLE, July 7.—The democratic party of Dawson county met in the court house in Dawsonville to elect delegates to the state convention to nominate a candidate for governor and for congressman at large, and on motion A J Logan was called to the chair, and D J Burt was requested to act as secretary of the meeting. On motion the convention went into an election of two delegates by ballot' resulted in the election of R N McClure and D T Harris as delegates, A J Logan and D E Smith alternates.

DADE'S REAL CHOICE.

TRENTON, July 7.—Dade county instructed for John I Hall for congressman-at-large, not for General Young, as heretofore reported.

GILMER'S GLORY.

ELLIJAY, July 7.—In the democratic meeting here Messrs J C Allen and J P Cobb, were elected delegates. They are for Stephens.

JOHNSON ALL RIGHT.

SANDERSVILLE, July 7.—Johnson county has elected Stephens delegates to the gubernatorial convention.

CHATHAM FOR STEPHENS AND HARMONY.

SAVANNAH, July 6.—Chatham passed resolutions favoring Stephens for governor, and elected the following delegates: J F Wheaton, Dr J G Thomas, J L Warren, Peter Reilly, E A Weil, John Swartz, R N Reed, G W Parish, G M Ryals, Jonathan Stern, M Hamilton, A B Smith, J H Estill, John S Tyson, B A Denmark, Phillip M Russell, C C Hardwick, A P Adams, John T Roan, George C Freeman, William Clifton, John Flannery, Andrews Goebel, M J Doyle, John Power.

WHITE'S PRIMARY.

CLEVELAND, July 7.—In the primary convention here on Tuesday, the grand old commoner completely carried the day. There was a small Bacon boom but it soon collapsed, and then some of Judge Bleckley's friends tried to have him recommended, but it would not pay, as the people wanted Stephens or nobody. Whenever danger assails the democratic party old White stands boldly to her colors. It is a noticeable fact that all this opposition to Stephens comes from a few discontented politicians and Bacon's immediate friends in the legislature, who feel in duty bound to support him. One of his friends here on Tuesday, after laboring hard to have him recommended, and his efforts proving futile, was heard to say that he was glad that things had turned out the way they did, for he felt duty bound to give Bacon his support, being a personal friend of his, but said that Stephens was the choice of the people. You can always bet on White county doing the right thing, and can place her overwhelmingly for Stephens. The brilliant young congressman from this district, the Hon Emory, is fast losing ground, and if he does not file another injunction to prevent it by the time the election comes off his vote will be quite small. His appointing Matt Davis, or rather recommending him for the Athens post office, together with his injunction to prevent the Banner Watchman from publishing that correspondence of his, which he says is entirely of a private nature, has killed him with the intelligent portion of the mountain people, but some of the ignorant ones will vote for him it does not matter what he may do or say. I heard a man say the other day, and I blush to think of him as a Georgian, that it did not matter to him what Speer did, he would vote for him. But I am thankful to say that such cases are very rare were a man will be so stubborn as not to be convinced. The old adage says, "Convince a fool against his will and he is of the same opinion still." I have travelled over a large portion of the mountain counties of the district, and I find that Speer has lost ground fast and not in a single instance did I find a gain for him. Judge Ewin is the man the people want, but there exists doubt as to whether he would accept the nomination if it was tendered him. He can present a spotless record and if he will make the race such an uprising as was never seen will parade the old 9th. If he lays down his ermine to don the congressional robes the people may be sure of their interests being guarded carefully and when a question of vital importance to his constituents is before congress he will not be sick and found riding behind his match horses, simply to keep from being there to vote.

Hon. J. J. Kirnsey and J. R. Lumsden were chosen delegates to represent White in the gubernatorial convention of the 19th, and they go instructed to vote for Alexander H. Stephens for governor, and as for the other officers they are allowed to use their own wisdom. In the convention Captain Nichols introduced a resolution favoring the nomination of H. H Carlton for congressman-at-large, but the convention voted it down very promptly, and so, judging from that, the Carlton boom does not boom much in this county.

CARRY THE NEWS TO BACON

Fulton Sends Up a Rousing Stephens Delegation to the Convention.

Yesterday, in accordance with the order of the democratic executive committee of Fulton county, an election was held for the selection of delegates to represent the county in the gubernatorial convention and in the district congressional nominating convention. It was expected that there would be two sets of delegates to vote for—a Stephens ticket and a Bleckley ticket. The refusal of Judge Bleckley to allow the use of his name left only the Stephens delegates in the field. Early in the day the following was circulated:

TO THE VOTERS OF FULTON COUNTY.

At the suggestion and solicitation of friends, we have determined to withdraw our names as delegates to the convention to assemble in this city on the 19th instant.

J. M. McAFEE,
SAM. W. SMALL,
J. J. FALVEY,
CHAS. BEERMANN.

July 8, 1882.

Mr. T. J. Buchanan and Dr. M. C. Martin have also declined to permit the use of their name, and published cards in THE CONSTITUTION of this morning.

There were two voting precincts, one at the city hall and one at Tallulah engine house. The polls were opened at seven and closed at seven. The voting was livelier than was expected, especially in view of the fact that there was but one ticket in the field. There was no opposition to Mr. Stephens and everything was quiet. At Tallulah engine house the managers and clerks were: Judge Rhea, Clarence Moore, A O M Gay and George Wyley. The result was quickly summed up in the evening and was as follows:

Delegates to the state convention:

Henry Jackson	414	Hoke Smith	415
R F Maddox, alt	414	C E Harmon, alt	415
Wm G Gramlin	381	R D Spalding	413
Rober L Barry, alt	381	M Mahoney, alt	414

John N Dunn, alt	413	W H Howell, alt	414

For delegates to the congressional convention:

E W Marsh	414	Jerome Bearse	414
G T Dodd	170	John H Flynn	414
G W Adair	414	Dr J F Alexander	414

At the city hall the managers were Fred R Cooper, J R Gray, B W Williford, W F Crusselle.

The result at the city hall was as follows: For delegates to the gubernatorial convention:

Henry Jackson	113	Hoke Smith	113
R F Maddox, alt	113	C E Harman, alt	112
Wm G Gramlin	113	R D Spalding	112

There were two votes for each of the gentlemen on the Bleckley ticket. It will be seen that the Stephens delegates had a walk-over. As far as THE CONSTITUTION could ascertain, the feeling of the delegates is for the majority rule and against the two-thirds.

THE RESULT SUMMARIZED.

How the Vote Stands for Governor, Congressman-at-Large and the Rule.

COUNTIES.	FOR GOVERNOR. For Stephens.	For Bacon.	Uninstructed.	THE RULE. For majority.	For two thirds.	Uninstructed.

Good.

Perhaps no other institution of the kind in the world has been the means of accomplishing so much good as the Fulton street noon day prayer meeting in the city of New York. Thousands of now happy Christians can point to that little meeting as the place where they received impressions which caused them to turn from their evil lives and embrace the religion which now makes them happy, useful Christains. The same can be said of the Farwell hall noon day meetings in Chicago, where every day at 12 o'clock promptly, from three to five hundred of earnest workers meet for worship. In these meetings the most prominent workers are some of the leading business men of that great city. These men engaged in the different branches of trade and much that has a tendency to perplex and annoy mankind are never too busy to attend these delightful noon day meetings, where they can shut out these worldly things and for an hour commune with their God and go forth better prepared to withstand the trials and temptations incident to this life.

And so it is wherever these meetings are held. Why not here in our loved city? I am glad to state that a meeting of this kind has been organized by the Young Men's Christian association, and every day from 12 to 12:30 for the past week a few have met there and spent thirty minutes in prayer and praise. It is needless to say these few have been blessed at every coming together.

Why not make this meeting here as great a power for good as those mentioned above? Why not have that hall filled every day with the business men of Atlanta, many of whom are Christians and all of whom ought to be? Many of these have a number of employes, two or three of whom they could spare for thirty minutes each day to attend these meetings, and what good might be thus accomplished eternity will tell. Now let every Christian man and woman resolve to attend these meetings just as often as possible, and invite others to go. Begin Monday and go three days in succession, and then you will go all the time. Don't say you haven't time. It isn't fair to serve mammon six days and only give one to God. These meetings will be a wonderful help to you, no matter what your occupation may be; for no matter how good a Christian you may be, remember that—

Restraining prayer we cease to fight.
Prayer makes the Christian's armor bright,
And Satan trembles when he sees
The weakest saint upon his knees.

Mr. J. P. Stevens, accompanied by his foeman, left yesterday afternoon for New York and the east for the purpose of making additional purchases of machinery for the J. P. Stevens Watch Company.

When this new machinery is gotten in the capacity of the factory will be greatly increased, and Atlanta watches will be produced in quantities sufficient to supply the demand which has hitherto been so great that in order to obtain one of them it was necessary to order it a month or so in advance.

We are pleased to see a home industry so well supported. Such enterprises as this bring into the south just that element of skilled labor which we most need to establish our prosperity in manufacturing.

We are learning to profit by the success of northern enterprise in the field of manufacture; while it is necessary to obtain workmen and machinery in the northern market, one of the notable features of the manufacturing interests that are springing up in Atlanta is that our own citizens are investing their capital and directing their energies in this channel.

The watch company is itself an illustration. Mr. Stevens, its leading spirit, has long been a resident of Atlanta, and every cent of the capital stock is owned by men who were born and raised in this state. It is in every sense a home industry, conducted by men who have grown up with the city; and we have no doubt that, managed as it is, by practical business men, it will meet with the success it deserves.

IN MEMORIAM.

ATLANTA, GA., July 7, 1882.

To Central Lodge, No. 28, I. O. O. F:

Willis R. Biggers, born January 17, 1846; died June 25, 1882.

We, your committee, appointed to consider and present appropriate resolutions in memory of Brother W. R. Biggers, late deceased, ask leave to recommend as follows:

Whereas, An All-Wise Providence has removed from us by death our brother Willis R. Biggers; be it resolved

1. That we humbly bow to the Divine Dispensation, recognizing that in his death our lodge has lost an earnest friend, the order a votary for love and truth, the community an upright citizen, and his family an appreciated son, to whose life his friends, with pleasure, can refer, and a bereaved wife and orphaned children draw concillation and comfort as they remember his affection and devotion to them, and the many virtues of his character.

2. That we hereby tender our heartfelt sympathies to his family and friends in the hour of their bereavement, and suggest conciliation to them in remembering that their lost one is living beyond the tomb.

3. That a separate page in our minute book be set apart for the record of these resolutions, and that a copy of same, under seal of the lodge, be furnished the family of our deceased brother.

Respectfully submitted.

TO THE PUBLIC.

HAVING SOLD MY ENTIRE RESTAURANT and DINING SALOON to MR. ED MERCER, that gentleman assumes charge, and the establishment will in future be under his sole management. This bare announcement might be sufficient, but when I remind the public of Georgia that my well known restaurant has passed into the hands of a man who SUCCESSFULLY CATERED TO THE WORLD at the Centennial in Philadelphia, and at a later period while in charge of the Congressional Restaurant, at Washington City, proved himself equal to the demands of the BRAINS of the country, it will be seen that Atlanta will have at a very early day that which she has never had before. The public will soon have an opportunity of appreciating it. R. P. THOMPSON.
July 8, 1882.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I beg to state to the people of Atlanta and of Georgia that I have purchased the entire outfit of the Thompson Restaurant, and shall use my best endeavors to make it the best appointed establishment of the kind in the south. New features will be added, and in all things it will be kept abreast with the times. I shall not be content to supply "the best the market affords," but will create a market of my own when necessary to give my patrons the good things they may want. With experience, energy and ample means at my command, I shall leave nothing undone that can contribute to the success of the concern. With a cordial greeting to former patrons, and an invitation to new ones, I shall hope to deserve the good will of all.

ON VARIOUS MATTERS AND DIVERS THINGS.

The Philosopher Who Lives Near Cartersville Unfolds His Usual Weekly Budget of Timely Topics of Interest to Lovers of Human Nature of the Georgia Variety.

Written for The Constitution.

"All the world's a stage," as Mr. Shakspeare says, and all the men and women merely travelers. It is a mighty big stage, of course—in fact, an omnibus, for it carries us all, and we are traveling along and getting in and getting out all along the line, and ever and anon stopping by the wayside to nurse our sick and bury our dead. There is nothing else that puts on the brakes as we move down the big road on the journey of life. Sickness and death are a veto upon all progress and upon plans and schemes and hopes and ambition and fame and fashion and folly. We suffer awhile and stop awhile, but if we don't die we get in the stage again and move on with the crowd. Sickness knocks up a man and humbles him quicker than anything. Just let the pitiless angel of pain come along suddenly and seize him by some vital part and twist him around a time or two and shake him up and he will know better what the word torture means when he reads it in a book. I thought I was a strong man and tough, and so the angel has had no terrors for me. I've had the toothache and mashed my big toe with a crowbar and got around lively with a green corn dance, but after it was over I forgot the sting of it and only remembered the joke. But there are some things without any joke, and that won't let you forget 'em, and when they come and go they leave you humbled and backed and meek as a lamb with his legs tied. They take away your pride, and your brag and your starch and stiffening. They strip you of flowers and frills and thread lace and jewelry and leave a poor mortal like a dependent beggar for the charity of health good health. "If I was only well again" the poor victim sighs, "Oh, if I was only well."

When a man gets along to my age he forgets that he is

ON THE DOWN GRADE.

That he is like a second-hand wagon patched up and painted and sold at auction to the highest bidder. It will run mighty well on a smooth road with a light load and a careful driver, but it wont do to lock wheels with another or run into gullies or over stumps or up to the hubs in the low grounds. A man is very much like a wagon, anyhow, for his shoulders and hips are the axle-trees and his arms and legs are the wheels and the wagon body is his body and the coupling pole is his spine and the hounds are his kidneys—his reins, as the Scriptures call em—and they brace up everything and hold up the tongue and the coupling pole, and if the hounds are weak and rickety the hind wheels don't track with the fore wheels, and the whole concern moves along with a hitch and a jerk and a double wabble. "He tryeth the reins of the children of men," for that was the test of a man. If the kidneys were sound and well ordered the man was right before the Lord, for in them were supposed to be centered the affections and passions and emotions of a man. Those old time philosophers attached a good deal of importance to the kidneys, but I thought it was a superstition of their ignorance and I never cared much about my kidneys. In fact, I dident care whether I had any or not for I was a thinking what Judge Underwood told me a long time ago about the spleen, which he said only was put there to make men splenetic and cross, and keep 'em from getting overjoyful in this subloonary world. I thought that may be the kidneys were like the liver of a man over in California, which was crushed out of him in a mine some fifty years ago, when he was about fifty years old, but he was sowed up and got well and now he is a hundred years old and not a hair turned grey nor a wrinkle come nor his eyes grown dim nor his teeth come out, and he keeps well and round and plump and active and goes to balls and never has an ache or a pain and its all because his liver is gone. Jesso.

Well, you see I had promised to

across the branch down in the willow thicket and make a bathing pool for the children; and so a few days ago I went at it with a will and got my timbers across, and my boards nailed on, slanting up the stream to a rock bottom, and then I put on some old boots and old clothes and went to chinkin up the leaks with turf and gravel and willow brush and sand bags, and as fast as I stopped one leak another broke out, but I worked fast and worked hard, and the children waited on me and brought me material, and after while the water began to rise on me, and got higher and higher till it went over the dam. It was then about noon, and the hot sun was blistering down, and the cold spring water was a chilling me up and I begun to feel age and infirmity, so I took a good bath myself, and put on dry clothes and retired to rest from my labors. That evening I listened to the shouts of happy children as they frolicked in the pool, and I rejoiced, for it always makes me happy to see them happy. The next day I didn't get up well, and as I was a knockin' around in my garden, a holding up my back, shore enough, without any warning, the unfeelin' angel of pain come along suddenly and snapped me up by the left kidney like he wanted to wrestle, and took all underholt, and he spun me around with such a jerk I almost lost my breath with agony, and he pummeled me and thumped me all the way to the house, and threw me on the bed while I hollered. "What in the world is the matter with you, William?" says my wife.

MRS. ARP SAYS

she to me, and the children all gathered around and thought I was snake bit. I've got a turrible pain round here, says I, and its turrible turrible. Oh, Lordy! They fired up the stove in a hurry and brought water, and they gave me camphor and paregoric and one thing another; but I got worse, and groaned and grunted amazingly, for I tell you I was a sufferin.

"I expected it! I expected it!" says Mrs. Arp, as she moved round lively. "I just knew some trouble would come from all that dam business of yesterday." My stomach had suddenly got out of order—I don't know how—for everything they give me come up before it was down, and so they tried salts and quinine and hot water and pain killer, and morphine, and magnum bonum and everything in the house, but nothing would stick, and at last the pain just left me as suddenly as it came on, and I went to sleep. But my system was all out of order; the machinery wouldent work nowhere. The cold sweat poured from me all night, and I dreamed I was away off in a wet prairie, lying down in the cold grass, hiding from a herd of buffaloes, and I woke up with a shaking ague and had to have my night clothes changed and dried off like a race horse. The morning brought another attack, still worse than the first, but

THE GOOD DOCTOR

Kirkpatrick came in time and put me on morphine and spirits of nitre, a hot bath and shortened up the time and told me my trouble was in the kidneys, and what was going on, and when he left me I was easy and meek and humble, and could look around upon wife and children like nobody was a sinner but me. When I was awake I could look up at the old whitewash that was peeling off from the ceiling and see all sorts of pictures I never saw before. They took shapes innumerable, for there were monkeys, and camels, and bears, and buzzards, and turtles, and big injuns, and little Frenchmen, and old witches, and anacondas, and other metaserie animals all out of shape and funny and fantastic: and while I was asleep I dreamed ridiculous dreams and that was in me made me to hear waterfalls and mill-dams, and once I imagined the little one that I had built had grown and swelled until Niagara was but a circumstance compared with it. But there is no rest for the wicked, for though I had escaped for a day and a night and was luxurating upon bright hopes of returning health, the pityless angel came along again, and seeing I had rallied from the fight began on me with a maul and beat up my left kidney again till it was all in a jelly and as sore and sensitive as a carbuncle, and as he left me I seemed to hear him say. "You didn't know you had kidneys, did you? How many have you got now?" About a dozen, said I. Eight or ten anyhow, and they are as big and heavy as shot bags. The fact is my back and side was so sore and I was so nervous it almost gave me a spasm to think of anybody punching me there with a stick. But the torture would leave me as certainly as it came and then I could get my breath good and free and get round as usual. But now I think I am all safe and serene for a time. Good nursing and the doctor's skill and time and patience has got the old wagon upon a smooth road again and I think I will keep it there. I've made friends with my kdneys and signed up a treaty of peace with the angel and the last article is that I am to build no more branch dams during life if I have to wade in water to do it—and I won't.

Other's Misfortunes.

A French wit has said: "We are all strong enough to bear the misfortunes of others." A kindred sentiment is found in Artemus Ward's willingness to sacrifice all of his second cousins in the late war. But why endure the misfortunes of others? Why see others sacrificed to the Moloch of diseased kidneys or liver, broken down in health, weak wasted, hastening to the grave, when we know that Hunt's Remedy is just the specific that will make a perfect cure? That man with weak back, sore loins, distressed feeling, lost energy, has disease of the kidneys, Hunt's Remedy is just what he needs. Let him not be sacrificed, but tell him the good news of this wonderful medicine.

THE COTTON MARKET

CONSTITUTION OFFICE,
Atlanta, July 8, 1882

New York—The months opened quiet this morning at prices a fraction lower, but immediately afterwards developed a better feeling which increased as the day advanced. By ten o'clock the market had gathered considerable strength, and during the remainder of the day moved upwards rapidly. The market for several days has been constantly gaining ground and the outlook favors a higher range of prices for the near future. At the close to-day the months stood 12@20 points above yesterday's closing figures with tone firm. The spot market is likewise firm and active with an advance of 1-16c reported to-day; middling 12 15 16c.

Net receipts to-day amount to 1,2[illegible] bales, against 3,036 bales last year; exports 3,610 bales; last year 8,357 bales; stock 255,769 bales; last year 336,6[illegible]2 bales.

Below we give the opening and closing quotations of cotton futures to-day:

LISTEN, LISTEN,

To the Words of Warning from One of South Carolina's Noblest Daughters.

Dr. V. R. Stone:

DEAR SIR—Please send me a half dozen bottles of your valuable APEPSIA. I have seen it do such remarkable cures in cases of Dyspepsia that I resolved to try it for sick headache. When I feel the headache coming on I take two teaspoonfuls of APEPSIA, which arrests the trouble immediately and puts a stop to my suffering. I wish I could convince the heads of every household that APEPSIA should always be kept on hand. I never intend being without it now that I find it as good for sick headache as it is for Dyspepsia. Hoping to receive your orders soon, I am yours respectfully,
KATE S. VILLARD, Seminole, S. C.

APEPSIA!

The great scientific preparation will positively cure old chronic cases of Dyspepsia, Dyspeptic Fits, Dyspeptic Vertigo and Dyspeptic Consumption, where every other known medicine has failed to give relief. CITY HALL NOTES.

Judge Wilson takes life easy.

Yesterday's was a quiet election.

Sheriff Perkerson enjoys a good joke.

There are no courts going on at the city hall now.

Judge Branham was in the superior court room yesterday.

There was an unusually large crowd of children in the park yesterday.

The city court room will be the favorite political meeting place during the campaign.

Judge Cunningham set up the peaches yesterday to the city hall officers and attaches.

POLICE POINTS.

Mandy Horn is wanted for larceny.

Ed Masters is doing the burglar act to perfection, and is wanted by the police.

The Charley Johnson who has figured in the police reports so frequently during the past week is a negro.

Susan Mason was badly wounded by Bill Baxter yesterday. Her skull was fractured with a large stick.

Farming On a Large Scale.

The Camps Brothers, of Coweta county, raised this year fifteen hundred bushels of oats, two thousand bushels of wheat, three hundred bales of cotton and two thousand and five hundred bushels of corn.

Badly Injured and May Die.

Yesterday afternoon Sidney Stephens, a carpenter who was working on Langston & Crane's new warehouse near the West Point depot, fell from the scaffold and fractured his skull. His physicians think his recovery a matter of great doubt.

Discharged from Jail.

Yesterday William Duckworth was discharged from Fulton county jail. He was convicted at the last term of the court of a violation of the revenue laws and was sentenced to three months' imprisoment, $200 fine and costs. He took the pauper oath and escaped the payment of the fine.

The Shields Trial.

Yesterday was the day set for the hearing of the motion for new trial in the case of the State against Romulus Shields, convicted of the murder of Aleck Joyner and sentenced to confinement in the penitentiary for life. Judge Branham, of the Rome circuit, was to have heard the case. The case was, however, postponed until next Saturday, when the motion will be heard.

Chautauqua Lake and Niagara Falls.

Excursion tickets to Lake Chautauqua and Niagara Falls via the popular New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio railroad, have been placed on sale in the depot office in the carshed, at the low rate of $26.30 to Chautauqua, and $30 to Niagara, both for the round trip and good until October 31st. These rates are unusually low, and almost every section of the entire trip is full of interest. The New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio crosses Ohio diagonally, giving the traveler glimpses of the richest sections of that rich state. Its Pennsylvania track crosses the oil district. It is the shortest as well as pleasantest route to the New York watering places.

The Pomological Society.

The pomological society met yesterday in the rooms of the department of agriculture. President Robinson presided. A very fine lot of fruits was shown. Mr. Peters said that the pear trees on his place had all disappeared from the effects of blight except the Seckle and Ott. Both of these he reported in good condition. The apple trees were also reported as being very generally killed. Mr. Robinson said that he thought the red rust would exterminate the blackberries. The discussion of raspberries took place. Dr. Hape said that he had succeeded with raspberries by protecting them from the evening sun. It was decided that mulching was necessary.

Sweet Potato Transit.

The following joint circular, issued by southern roads, is good evidence that southern railroad men are making rates which will offer inducements for farmers and merchants to turn their attention to handling and raising sweet potatoes and shipping them north, where a ready sale always awaits them:

On and after July 12, 1882, the rate on sweet potatoes in bags or barrels, released, in car loads, will be the same as that on grain (class D), in the local tariffs of the roads represented by the undersigned.

THE ATLANTA BROOM.

A New Enterprise to be Added to the Manufactures of the City—The Cultivation of Broom Corn.

"Atlanta's broom will sweep as clean as any," said Mr. Falvey, as he hurriedly turned the corner of Broad and Alabama.

"Stop a moment and tell us more about it."

"Well, you know there is money in brooms, as well as cleanliness in their use. There is not a house in the land that is not a customer in the broom market, and yet, strange to say, that immense custom has been in but few hands. In several parts of the country there are small factories with uncertain support, and turning out an inferior article. There is but one steam broom factory in the world—that of Cupples & Co., in Chicago—and there the great bulk of the custom goes."

"In what way do you propose to engage in it?"

"Mr. Lenfesty and myself have completed arrangements to rival the Chicago house and make Atlanta the second place to enter the manufacture of brooms by steam. Our factory will be located the other side of the Gate City cotton factory, on the Georgia railroad, and will be fitted up with every appliance of modern invention. We start this week with fifteen employes. We will not only push the Atlanta broom into every section of the south, but all over the north and into Canada."

"This will make Atlanta the center of a heavy trade, then?"

"Yes; but the benefits will not end there. Do you not know that the production of broom corn is one of the most profitable industries in the country? Kansas now has the monopoly of it, though a good quantity is grown in Ohio. Two tons can be grown to the acre, under good cultivation, and it sells at $150 a ton. $300 made on one acre is enough to engage the attention of any farmer."

"Will that corn grow here?"

"Yes, it can be grown on any land capable of producing corn or cotton. We intend to promote its cultivation in Georgia, and for that purpose will take pains to introduce the finest seeds known."

"What do you figure out for your first year's business?"

"Fifty thousand dollars!"

And he was around the corner and out of sight.

FULTON DEMOCRATS.

The Meeting Yesterday for the Election of a County Executive Committee.

Yesterday at 12 o'clock a mass meeting of Fulton county democrats was held in the city court room, the object of which was to elect an executive committee to serve for the next two years. There was a good attendance of the best people of the county, and much interest in the proceedings was shown. On motion of Colonel E. F. Hoge, Colonel C. C. Hammock was called to preside, and Mr. R. P. Hill, to act as secretary.

On motion, the following committee was appointed to prepare and present to the meeting the names of a suitable committee, to be indorsed by the meeting as the executive committee of the county: Howell C. Glenn, Ed. Angier, H. C. Leonard, B. F. Abbott and G. H. Culberson.

On motion of Mr. W. R. Hammond, the following committee of five was appointed to prepare a set of delegates to the senatorial convention: W. R. Hammond, D. M. Bain, Dr. Olmstead, Dr. Hutchison and C. L. Poole.

On motion of Mr. H. C. Glenn, a recess of ten minutes was taken. When the meeting was called to order, Colonel D. Pike Hill presented the following resolution:

Resolved, That the democratic party of Fulton county recommend the majority rule as the proper rule for the government of all future conventions in making nominations.

Mr. D. M. Bain moved to table the resolution, but withdrew his motion to allow Mr. H. H. Collier to present the following:

Resolved by the democratic party of Fulton county, in convention assembled, That the delegates selected to the gubernatorial convention are hereby instructed to vote for the continuance of the two-third rule.

The issue was thus squarely made. Several short speeches pro and con were made. Mr. D. P. Hill opened the discussion with a speech in favor of his resolution. He was followed by Mr. Small in support of the resolution of fered by Mr. Collier. As a substitute for Mr. Hill's resolution, a speech in favor of the majority rule was made by Mr. Hoke Smith who was followed by Mr. Small upon the other side, and by Mr. Hill in favor of the majority.

The previous question was called by Mr. Glenn, and the substitute offered by Mr. Collier was laid on the table by a vote of 39 to 22.

A motion to send the delegates uninstructed was carried by a vote of 38 to 2.

Mr. Hammond, of the committee appointed to select a list of delegates to the senatorial convention, made the following majority and minority reports:

A majority report signed by W. R. Hammond, J. C. Olmstead, J. A. Hutchison and D. M. Bain, suggesting John Keely, John Thomas, M. L. Collier, J. S. Candler, T. A. Kennedy and W. R. Joyner.

A minority report, signed by C. L. Poole, suggesting I. W. Avery, A. P. Stewart, J. T. Cooper, J. N. Dunn, J. D. Collins, Hoke Smith.

Mr. Hoke Smith said that he coud not serve. Mr. Abbott said that the mass meeting was working out of its authority. That the meeting had been called to select an executive committee for the county and that no other work could be done. Mr. Smith moved that the report be tabled and that the executive committee call a primary election to elect delegates to the senatorial convention. The motion prevailed.

Mr. H. C. Glenn, of the committee appointed to select an executive committee, presented the following names:

South Atlanta, at large—Harry Jackson.
North Atlanta, at large—E S McCandless.
1st Ward—J A Anderson, George S Lowndes.
2d Ward—W D Ellis, W J Garrett.
3d Ward—S W Day, Joseph Smith.
4th Ward—W B Cox, H C Glenn.
5th Ward—J T Cooper, Henry Haney.

Collins District—James D Collins.
Adamsville District—S K Ozburn.
Bryant's District—J O Redwine.
Cook's District—Nathan Lyons.
Buckhead District—Jerome Cheshire.
Oak Grove District—Samuel Abernathy.

The report was adopted and the meeting adjourned. The utmost harmony and good feeling prevailed.

THE ATLANTA COTTON FACTORY

Some Facts, Figures and Suggestions About the Recent Sale.

The sale of the cotton factory has been a subject upon which the people have engaged in considerable discussion. The fact that a splendid property almost in the heart of this growing city which cost over four hundred thousand dollars, and which is generally regarded as cheap, even in this time of depression in cotton manufacturing, at $300,000, should be knocked down on a bid of one hundred thousand is surprising, and the people do not understand it. We learn upon inquiry and investigation that a syndicate was formed by Governor Bullock, between some of the first mortgage bondholders and outside parties, to bid up to at least $225,000. This amount would have given the first mortgage bondolders par on their bonds, and the holder of second mortgage bonds would have been compelled to raise this bid or lose their investment. On the morning of the sale an attorney arrived here from Rochester, New York, representing the trustee under the first mortgage and entered a formal protest against this sale as being illegal and irregular, because the sale was made under a decree of court and not through or by authority of said trustees. This protest prevented any bid being made by or for the first mortgage bondholders and associates heretofore mentioned, and the mill was struck off to the holder of the second mortgage at a nominal price.

We also learn that the circuit court has been adjourned to July 31, at which time the court will hear argument on the question of the confirmation of the sale. It is the almost unanimous opinion of the leading attorneys that the sale was legal and regular and will be so held by the court. In that event the amount bid will be distributed, first in payment of receivers' obligations which represent cotton, supplies, and working force organized for the working of the mill, and second, in payment on the first mortgage bonds.

It is said this distribution will give the first mortgage bondholders about 30 cents on the dollar. This wipes out the stock and second mortgage bonds entirely.

If the sale is confirmed the mill will go into the hands of strong parties who will not only run the present ten thousand spindles to their full capacity, but fill the mill up by adding the additional ten thousand spindles and three hundred looms, for which there is space waiting in the building.

Our people who subscribed their money as stockholders to build the mill were actuated by public-spirited feeling, and not from any desire for gain. They will generally be content if the mill runs on. The bondholders are doubtless able to meet the loss, if their position should not be sustained by the courts. The chief public interest our citizens have is that the factory is not to be idle. When Gov Bullock took charge, about one year ago, the mill was struggling along producing only about one hundred thousand yards per week. But under his management the production was pushed up to over one hundred and ninety thousand yards per week—the last week before the sale having run up to over two hundred thousand night and day without cessation. During the year and a half the governor has kept the mill in full operation, Marietta street has been illuminated with the glare from its electric lights and roused by the hum of its machinery. The property will remain in possession of Governor Bullock, who has paid in full all wages due operatives and employes, until the sale is confirmed, and we are informed that he will resume operations on a limited scale Monday morning next, the high price of cotton and low price of goods making it inadvisable to push the production until after the new crop of cotton begins to come in. It is said that Mr Hugh T Inman will be at the head of the new company that will operate the mill when the sale is confirmed. As Mr Inman is now president of the Exposition mills that are putting in machinery he will soon become one of our manufacturing kings. Success to him and his new enterprises.

Mr. Charles O. Tyner.

Mr. Charles O. Tyner, a member of the recent firm of Wilson & Tyner, has purchased the interest of his partner in the drug business at the corner of Marietta and Broad streets, and will hereafter conduct the business himself. Mr. Tyner is a young man of fine reputation, and during his three years residence in Atlanta has won hosts of friends. His close attention to business has secured him a good trade which his impartial dealing with the public will retain. He was in Hallman & Candler's retail department for two years, and was the partner of Dr. Wilson for a year.

Glen Mary Coal.

This is a very superior grate and stove coal from off the Cincinnati Southern railroad, and was introduced here last fall and winter by W S Wilson & Bro, who will handle it again this season. They find that it is a first-class coal in every particular, and gives universal satisfaction. It lights easy, burns free, burns up clean, lasts well and makes much less dust and ashes than other grades of coal that is in the market. They have had numbers of parties that have been using the "Montevallo coal" to try this coal, and they all pronounce it to be equal to the Montevallo in every respect. This coal is well mined; is in large lumps and free from slate and other impurities. If you want the best and cheapest coal in the market this is the coal for you to buy. Remember who keeps it.

or a pair of Bracelets, do not fail to call early and get first choice. He has some magnificent designs in Necklaces, Lockets and Bracelets. He has also received a large stock of the celebrated Meriden Britania Co's gold and silver plated ware, which will also be open on Monday. The 1847 Rogers Bro's Spoons, Forks and Knives, are the only Rogers Bro's goods which made the world-wide reputation, and are now manufactured by the Meriden Britania Co, and for sale at my store. Be not induced to buy others not stamped 1847, Rogers Bros, AI.

The singing at the First Baptist Church this morning promises to be very good. 433

It is more than gratifying to the friends of Miss Allie LaHatte to see her familiar face in Atlanta again. We feel justly proud of this energetic young lady and her success as a teacher. It is said by those who attended her concert that the orchestral music so beautifully rendered by herself and pupils was decidedly the best thing in the musical line ever produced in Senoia. It is well to mention the charming operetta "Maud Irving." It was a complete success, and in the operetta of the "Three Little Kittens," those who performed their parts did great credit to their teacher.

Mr J E Haskins, the traveling representative of the celebrated Buffalo Lithia springs, of Mecklenburg county, Virginia, is now paying a visit to our city, and may for the next ten days be found at the Markham house. He will be gratified to meet any who may contemplate visiting the springs of Virginia during the present season, or such as may desire to make a test of these wonderful waters at their homes.

CITY NEWS

A fine male quartette will sing at the First Baptist Church this morning. 433

A lovely Peachtree street home will be sold at auction Wednesday, July 12. It is the "Rosedale farm," consisting of 90 acres of valuable land, fronting half a mile on the main Peach tree road, and only 1½ miles from the city limits, on which is an elegant 10-room dwelling, numerous outhouses, fine orchards, streams, springs, natural and beautiful place for artificial lakes, fine groves of stately oaks, lovely lawns, splendid building sites, good farming, grass and clover lands, and 60 acres of heavy, original timber, which, so near the city, is exceedingly valuable. The advantages, attractions, conveniences and susceptibilities of this splendid property are numerous and render it a rare prize as a home or a speculation—such an one as may not be offered again. Plats giving full description of property, time and terms of sale, etc, will be ready this week. We request everybody to drive out and examine this charming home. The Moreland Lawn Party.

...he lawn party, complimentary to Miss Jackson, ...New Orleans, at Moreland park, Thursday night, ...s one of the most elegant social events of the ...ason. The specious and handsome grounds, ...hich nature has made so lovely, was greatly beau...ied by artistic work and taste of those who ...anaged the arrangement. At each of the four ...rners of the park was a large headlight, which ...rew their rays over the entire ground, making it ...light as at noonday. Scattered over the five ...res of ground were innumerable flambeaus and ...hinese lanterns which increased the beauty of the ...ace. Two bands furnished music during the en...re evening, and as the strains of the waltz floated ...ver the waters of the beautiful lake in the ...enter of the park, the guests gave vent ...o their happy feelings in a merry ...augh and the dizzy waltz. For those present a ...ost elegant repast was prepared. The ladies were ...ost beautifully attired in costumes as costly and ...ey were various. Among those present were Miss ...ackson, Misses Pecks, Misses Bowles, Miss West...oreland, Miss Mims, Miss Wadley, Miss Gay, Miss ...illiard, Mr and Mrs Reagan, Mr and Mrs Knowles, ...r and Mrs Geo Schaefer, Mr and Mrs R J Lowry. The happy event lasted until long after midnight, and when the guests at last separated it was with regret that time flies so fast.

Children's Party.

On Wednesday evening, from 5½ to 8 o'clock, Misses B Dugas, and N E Schaefer, entertained ...heir young friends at 255 Ivy, the residence of Profes...or and Mrs Peck. The company was composed en...rely of those whose little hearts had never been ...hilled by contact with the cold world, nor their ...spirations blighted by disappointments. The hours were passed happily as they glided about in amusements, or chatted in the fullness of their glee.

German.

Monday evening of the university commencement week at Athens an elegant German will come off. The engraved invitations are in exquisite taste and typical design. The German will be complimentary to Miss Maggie Barrett of Augusta, and under the auspices of the Thalian club of Athens. Atlanta will be proud of her representative on the occasion.

Delightful Party.

Last Tuesday night an exceedingly pleasant party came off at the residence of M G W Ramey, of Newnan. It was given to Miss Moss Harris, of Atlanta, and Miss Mattie Hester, of Monroe. The roses of the party are all plucked, its wine drunk, its music hushed, its glad joyance stilled, its lights extinguished, but it lives as a pleasant and cherished memory.

Ball at Blount Springs.

The first ball of the season at Blount Springs, Ala, came off last Tuesday night. Atlanta was represented on the occasion, and aside from the guests quite a number were present from Birmingham The sumptuous repast and the gaities of the evening made the opening ball quite a success. There are some 200 guests at the springs.

Smith—Chambers

Douglasville Star: On Saturday, the 1st inst., Colonel M. M. Smith, of this place, was married in Atlanta to Miss Ida Chambers, of Dallas, Texas. We tip our hat to Colonel Smith, who has turned the tide of emigration from the west to the east.

The Weather.

During the week there has been a coolness amid the heat, and a mildness in the sunshine, that interferred with rides and drives to Ponce de Leon.

Who?

Dalton Argus: A former Dalton couple, now of Atlanta, are said to be approaching the sweet, sad hour, and cards will soon be out.

Next.

Cupid is more industriously plying his work at West End than in Atlanta; two weddings are booked for an early day.

Misses Corinne, Sallie and Moselle Walker, accompanied by their mother, Mrs Colonel L W Walker, passed through the city from Richmond, Virginia, where Miss Sallie has just graduated with honors. They were en route to their home in Alabama.

Miss Mary, daughter of Dr C L Wilson, returned home to Atlanta this week, after a few month's tour through the north and west. During her absence Miss Wilson attended the commencement exercises of the Wesleyan female college at Cincinnati, Ohio, of which she is an Alumni.

Thursday and Friday Misses Millie Rutherford, Bessie Rutherford, J Hampton, Basiline Prince and Mrs F A Lipscomb, of the Lucy Cobb institute at Athens, were in the city en route to Saratoga to attend the National teachers' association and American institute, which convenes on the 12th. They will visit Niagara, Grand Island and other places of interest.

Miss Lottie M. Bumstead, a sister of Mrs. O. L. Braumuller, has just returned from Cincinnati, where she has been completing a musical course as organist. We copy the following from the Cincinnati Enquirer:

Miss Lottie Bumstead, of Atlanta, Ga., at the last examination of the college of music, displayed powers as an organist, as a pupil of Professor George A. Whitting, that astonished even her best friends. She plays with exquisite and artistic skill, and manipulates the grand instrument with remarkable ability and ease. She is a credit to the college and her friends.

AMUSEMENT ITEMS.

The Thursday evening hops at Mt Airy are an attractive feature.

Mary Anderson will make "Marie Stuart" her piece de resistance for next season.

Emma Abbott claims to have for next season the strongest company she has ever had.

John T. Raymond opens his season in September at Lexington, Ky., during the Kentucky state fair.

The "Wild Oscar" of Mr. Smith Clayton has been twice given in Atlanta and on both occasions to large houses. He certainly should feel flattered at the manner of its reception.

A minstrel company has been organized in Montgomery, Ala. The company is christened the "J R Wells Mastodon minstrels," and is comprised of 40 young men who possess very fine musical and other talent that will contribute to its success.

Mary Anderson lives a secluded life at Long Branch. Most of her time is passed in playing with her little stepsister and brothers on the lawn of her pretty place. She rides on horseback a great deal, and sails considerably on the Shrewsbury river. She is never seen at any of the hotels, and goes very little into society.

The Fay Templeton troupe has done a very fine business this season. They have just closed an engagement in Brooklyn, New York, and the Review says: "Miss Templeton as Bettino is unsurpassed. With her youth and ambition it will be strange if in five years she has not gained the position held by Aimee, Theo and Schneider. She is without exception the most promising light opera artist ever seen on the metropolitan boards."

The Artist's Model.

From the New York Tribune.

A slight figure flitted in at the door of the academy of design the other day and disappeared into an inner room. She had a rosy face and bright eyes.

"That is one of our models," said the professor, rolling his eyes at the door. "A great change has taken place in public opinion concerning the use of living models," continued the professor, willing to talk. "Ten years ago there was an outcry against it. People said it was scandalous. Posing being a new thing, it was hard to get a model of either sex. Now you can get hundreds, and engagement are made weeks in advance."

"What pay do they get?"

"When the life class was first established we had to pay $1 50 per hour. Models pose from twelve to twenty hours a week. They are changed every two weeks, so as to give the students a change of subject. Men are better models than women, as they are less easily fatigued."

"How long does the model stand without resting?"

"An inexperienced one only twenty minutes at first. Stand in one position five minutes without moving a muscle and you will get some idea of how tiresome it is.

"Do they show much embarrassment?"

"So much that the muscles are as rigid as iron, and they become drenched with perspiration. But after posing two or three times the embarrassment wears off. It becomes merely routine business."

"Do many make it a profession?"

"There are several men who do nothing else. They pose here at the academy, at the Art Student's league, and in private studios. Most of our female models are young women who work in workshops and factories. They receive small wages, and think it a great piece of fortune if they can earn $10 a week extra by posing. They invariably give fictitious names."

A Fashion in Trousers.

A New York fashion writer says: "Isn't it odd how things go concurrently to extremes in male and female dress? Just now while the belles are pinioning and pressing our arms, the beaux are doing about the same to their dear little legs. New trousers are made on astonishing meager lines, and old ones are cut down. I don't know how it is in Ohio, but here in New York the young men's legs run thin and irregular.

This statement is based on public and casual observation. I have of late frequently sat in an elevated railroad car when some of the passengers had to stand, and wondered in my inmost soul how some of them continued to do it. When the car slews around a corner, and equilibrium has to be carefully readjusted, these stilt-supported chaps twist the two strands of legs into a single rope, and seem certain to go down in a heap with it coiled beneath them. These same fellows, I have no manner of doubt, would sit in the front row of a theatre on a ballet night, and make fun of legs twice as thick and straight as their own. We think a woman has narrowed her skirts unreasonably when she gets them down to three breadths, but I solemnly declare that I saw, this morning, a pair of trowsers with legs not an inch more than eleven in girth at the knee—or at the knob which I took to be a knee.

I want to know if the fashionable woman, in her wildest absurdities, ever equalled the fashionable man of to-day, with his legs squeezed into such trousers, and a flat hat hat pressing down on his brain!

Bernhardt as Cupid's Victim.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

In the representations she has give the improvement in style of Mdme. Bernhardt is marked. While her diction is less limpid and musical than before, her intonations of voice are more varied. She makes frequent use of the falsetto, and reconciles us by the almost infantile charm of her voice to a method which has always been received with more favor in France than in England. In added moderation of style and in the quietude with which her great effects are obtained, advance is most noticeable. Portions of her various performances rise to tragic intensity. It is always, however, in connection with the surrender of love that her highest results are reached. Her acting is one long illustration of the opening verse of Coleridge's poem of "Love":

> All thoughts, all passions, all delights,
> Whatever stirs this mortal frame;
> All are but ministers of Love,
> And feed his sacred flame.

That the powers of Mdme. Bernhardt do not extend beyond these limits cannot be said. Within them her empire is unassailed. In many exquisite and some eminent and creative gifts Mdme. Bernhardt stands at the summit of her profession.

Whitewash.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Chalk is cheap. I couldn't help thinking so yesterday on seeing Lillian Russell in a sixth avenue store. She is the most beautiful girl (a girl in years, though married and divorced) that has been put on the stage in this city for many a year. She has almost faultless features, a superb form, and a most modest demeanor. It was sad to see her lovely face disfigured by a coat of whitening, to say nothing of hair bleached and dyed a bright yellow. As the "Patience" of our current comic opera she is the demurest, sweetest, ablest milkmaid we have had. As a shopper among women, she was a fright from the causes mentioned, though her clothes were not at all gaudy. When will actresses learn that footlights and sunlight are totally different?

"A model of good taste on the street is Sara Jewett, the leading actress of the Union Square theater. Her costumes are quiet in color and cut, and her face is unpainted and her hair a natural bright auburn. She isn't comparable with Lillian Russell for an instant as to natural advantage. But she has the good sense to avoid artificiality when fixing herself for the street."

Rings—Their Use and Abuse.

From the Boston Journal.

Seven young ladies were perceived in a horse car, of whom not one had both gloves on and none were wholly bare-handed. Of these four had gloves on their right hands and three on their left, and in every instance the ungloved hand lay in the lap above the other. All of the seven bare hands had diamond rings upon them, and whenever any attentions were needed by the hair or raiment of the ladies, in every instance the ungloved hand was employed to bestow them, and in the necessary movements the stones flashed and glittered very much. And when, as happened in the process of time, the seven young ladies left the car one after the other, four of them waved their left hand to the conductor to direct him to stop, and the other three agitated their right hands, and again the rings sparkled quite copiously. All of which was very curious and interesting to the scientific mind.

Where to Kiss.

"'For pity's sake!' said I, 'aren't you girls going to kiss each other?'

"'In the station? Certainly not! Such things are not customary in England.'

"'Customary! I don't care a cent for your customs. If you two girls don't kiss each other immediately I'll kiss both of you myself without ceremony.' Frightened, and not knowing but that this creature from the wilds of America might do as he threatened, the English lassies timidly embraced, but certain I am they never dared to tell their lady mother of the occurrence." "Just think," added this historian, "would two American girls have been so cold, or rather so mortally in fear of showing a little natural sisterly affection? English people are affectionate, but they hate to show it."

"A Mascotte Is—a Mascotte."

From Waifs.

A mascotte may be a sou or a sixpence with a hole in it, a button, a lock of hair, anything which the punter has as associated with a lucky turn. Alms to a beggar—mascotte; denial of alms—mascotte; seeing a hunchback or a white horse—mascotte; meeting a black cat—mascotte. Three years ago a little hunchback at Monaco derived large returns from standing near the table and rubbing his hump at the request of the players. He had a tariff: once, five francs; a long rubbing, ten francs; for standing half an hour between a certain player and not rubbing for others, twenty francs. At the end of the season, returning to Paris on the train, he was seen to throw away his hump.

Actresses' Ages.

It is well that the age of famous and charming actresses should be made known as approximately as politeness will allow. The senior actress of the French stage, the doyenne, is Farguell, who was born in 1819 Then follow, in order, Marie Laurent, born in 1826; Miolan-Carvalho, 1827; Favart, 1833; Madeleine Broban, 1833; Pasca, 1835; Theresa, 1837; Rousseil, 1841; Blanche Pierson, 1842; Krauss, 1842; Adelina Patti, 1843; Celine Montaland, 1843; Sarah Bernhardt, 1844 (?); Leonide Lablanc, 1846; Croizette, 1847; Broisat, 1848; Celine Chaumont, 1848; Sangalli, 1849; Judic, 1850; Thro, 1852; Jeanne Granier, 1852; Reicaemberg, 1854; Baretta, 1856; Samary, 1857.

WHY WE SUICIDE.

WHAT A SUPERINTENDENT OF AN INSANE ASYLUM SAYS.

The Harm Which Sensational Articles Can Do—Why Men Kill Themselves—Insanity and Suicide Twin Sisters—The Way the Law Looks at The Matter—Other Details.

"The newspapers do a great harm by publishing detailed accounts of suicides," remarked the superintendent of a large insane asylum to a CONSTITUTION reporter yesterday.

"How so?" asked the reporter.

"Simply because you make other suicides by doing so. Did you never notice that there are generally epidemics of suicides. If you publish the details of a horrible suicide the chances are that it will be immediately followed by others. There might not be another suicide here in Atlanta, but some miserable fellow ten thousand miles from here with a tendency to suicide might chance upon the paper and be so overcome by the recital that he would take his own life. The article would act as the straw that would break the camel's back. You have no idea how terribly these fellows battle for their lives. The tendency to suicide is doubtless hereditary, but there are many instances where the malady did not manifest itself on the parent yet showed up on the offspring. There are also many cases where the habits of life of a person have so broken down his constitution or deranged his mind as to end in suicide. Insanity and suicide are linked together as brother and sister, and in the asylums for the insane our greatest care is to keep the inmates from destroying themselves. They are out of balance mentally. They have nothing particular to think about and when a paper falls into their hands containing a blood-curdling account of a suicide, their minds run on that line, and in some cases our greatest care is of no avail and the unfortunate goes under. The only reason that we do not have more suicides is because our patients believe that they cannot get in their work, that they are too closely watched. I have frequently had them to say to me, 'I would kill myself if I could. I would tie a sheet around my neck and hang myself, but before I could die some of the guards would come in and cut me down; so what's the use?' The sight of a razor would almost set them wild. Suppose you give a mad man a razor and he goes off to himself? He thinks first 'what can I do with it?' The edge is keen. He thinks of his financial troubles—the troubles that caused him to lose his mind, and in a very little while he has made up his mind to cut his throat, and away goes the lick and we have a suicide. All because the sight of the knife has turned his mind into that channel. So it is with your stories of suicides. They act as firebrands. It is a well established fact that the suicidal mania is spread by imitation and especially is this the case where the mode of self destruction is of a horrible kind. The sight of a weapon or the spot where a previous suicide was committed, will often induce a person who had been up to that time unsuspected of any such disposition, to at once destroy himself. I could hardly say that a perfectly sane man would deliberately go about killing himself, yet, even that is not impossible. But one out of balance reads an account of a suicide. He knows his own weak mental condition and fears that some day he too will suicide. He tries to throw off the feeling. It grows more upon him. He tries harder to throw it off. It fastens tighter upon him. He prays for deliverance and all the time the coil is tightening or like a man in the quicksand, his struggles sink him deeper and deeper, until finally the mania is master and the man takes his own life. Unintentionally you have fanned the flame that was destroying him."

TENDENCIES

"You spoke of a hereditary tendency to suicide."

"Yes. The tendency is undoubtedly hereditary. In one of my books is related an interview in which the disposition asserted itself in three generations. In the first the grandfather hung himself. He left four sons. One hung himself, another cut his throat, a third drowned himself after having been insane for several months. The fourth died a natural death. Two of the sons left large families. One child of the third died insane; two others drowned themselves, another became insane and made the most violent attempts on his life. Several other members of the family became insane when they had grown up. We have numerous cases in the asylums of this country that are interesting, but we seldom recite them. One of the most interesting cases of insanity and suicide that I ever heard of I may tell you about. An intellectual and talented gentleman of high social position married a lady of most excellent family and of equal mental attainments. He was passionately devoted to her, but was tainted with insanity. His father had died insane. He took up an idea that the world considered his wife his superior and in his unbalanced condition believed that people thought she exercised an undue influence over him.' He set out with a determination never to consult her and never to yield to her influence. He carried this singular decision, even into his writing, and never would allow her to know what he was writing about. Finally he grew exceedingly eccentric. He displayed a singular disposition for arranging things in order and would even steal into the different rooms of his house unnoticed and arrange the furniture, books, etc. He would frequently spend a whole day at this and finally became a pronounced lunatic and drowned himself. Outside of a mad house, the suicide generally fancies that he is oppressed and persecuted. That his prospects in life are ruined or that disgrace awaits him or her. Suicide is a most interesting study, but a most dangerous one. Few people should allow their thoughts to run on suicide. One of the most remarkable instances which goes to show how little it takes to bring on this crisis is told in one of my books by Sir Charles Bell. Many years since one of the surgeons of the Middlesex hospital was in the habit of going every morning to be shaved by a barber in the neighborhood, who was a steady, industrious man. One morning some conversation arose about an attempt at suicide which had recently occurred, and the surgeon remarked that the man had not cut himself in the right place. The barber casually inquired where the cut should have been made, and the surgeon pointed to the situation of the carotid artery. A few minutes after the barber went back to the shop and cut his throat with the very razor with which he had been shaving the surgeon. He had followed the directions and made a success of it. Here in Georgia we have many interesting suicides, but it would be improper for me to discuss them."

THE RESULT OF INSANITY.

"Do you think that suicide is always the result of insanity?"

"To say that would be to say too much, although there can be no doubt that there is always more or less mental derangement. An interesting subject for thought in this connection is the action of those who attempt suicide and fail. You remember Malone who committed suicide in Fulton county in Fulton county jail on the night before he was to have been hanged. All the circumstances went to show that his act was deliberate, and perhaps wholly devoid of mental derangement. He simply preferred dying by his own hand to dying upon the scaffold. He took a second dose of poison. It looks reasonable that he was sane. In England the law used to treat suicide as a felony and a man who failed was compelled to prove that he was insane. To accept that a man who attempts suicide is insane and not responsible for what he does is too sweeping. Suppose a man attempts to kill his wife and then himself, and his wife dies and he recovers, what shall be said of him? Or if I attempt to shoot myself and shoot somaerOnalnswi what must be done with me? dfmot odoee b jumps into a river with her child a dr owns the child and escapes herself, what shall be done with her? These things all must be decided by other facts than the mere attempt at self-destruction. Such, at least, is the law in medical jurisprudence. And then there comes up the question of life insurance. There is much in the question that you have asked me—much more than I have time to discuss."

"Among what class do suicides oftenest occur?"

"The poorer classes, of course, for there the fancied ills are supplemented by thousands of real ones. Your own paper's accounts will establish the truth of that assertion."

"What countries take the lead in suicides?"

"Since Young wrote, Britain is less 'infamous for suicides.' In France and Germany it is frequent, and even in Denmark. In Spain it has been rare. But suicide cannot be attributed to climate. Its greatest causes are: The principle of imitation and a hereditary disposition.

INTERNATIONAL

COTTON EXPOSITION,

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,

ATLANTA, GA., 1882.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee held at the office of the Director General, January 6th, 1882 Mr. Crane submitted the following Report from the Special Committee on Awards:

Whereas, Messrs. J. & P. Coats having made a magnificent display of their threads and thread-making machinery at the International Cotton Exposition; and,

Whereas, They were not entered for competition, but for exhibition only; and,

Whereas, Their display being one of the largest and most attractive we had; and,

Whereas, The Executive Committee feel that a recognition is due them for their untiring interest and assistance; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the thanks of this Executive Committee be tendered to Messrs. J. & P. Coats for the superb display of their Six-Cord Spool Cotton, which being entered for exhibition only, could not be officially recognized by the Judges of Award.

Resolved, That a copy of this preamble and resolution be engrossed on parchment and forwarded to Messrs. J. & P. Coats.

Signed, J. C. PECK,
BENJ. E. CRANE

On motion of Director Spalding the report was adopted:
